Village cuts parking lot quota by half

by BILL HILL

Parking requirements will be cut in half for new developments in downtown Arlington Heights to encourage more high-rise building in the village's central business district.

After directing the village administration to proceed with the necessary steps for constructing a parking garage in the downtown shopping area, the village board Monday adopted a motion to have Village Atty. Jack Siegel draft a new ordinance reducing parking requirements for businesses in the central business district.

The existing parking requirement for downtown developments "is the number one problem" in the central business district, Village Planner Joseph Kesler said.

THE ORDINANCE was adopted in 1965 when a special business district was created. "In the past six years, we've lost three or four big projects because of the parking requirements," Kesler said.

The requirements force a developer to provide adequate off-street parking, based on the size of the development, or pay a fee equivalent to $1,600 per space.

The money contributed so far totals about $100,000. It is to be put toward additional parking in the downtown shopping area.

The new parking ordinance should encourage developers to build high-rise buildings, rather than one-story shops, Kesler said.

"There should be an incentive for tall buildings so we spread vertically, not horizontally," he said.

CURRENT ZONING LAWS limit downtown buildings to nine stories.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said Tuesday the current plan is to reduce the parking requirements by about 50 per cent.

The motion to modify the parking requirements was passed unanimously by the village board, as was the motion to proceed with plans to build a 500-car parking garage on the northeast corner of the intersection of Vail and Sigwalt streets.

"The unanimity of the board Monday speaks well about the direction we're going downtown. It shows we're committed to make the area viable again," Village Pres. James T. Ryan said.

Ryan said he initially favored abolishing the downtown parking requirements entirely, but now is "open to discussion on it."

VILLAGE TRUSTEES seem to agree that the parking requirements must be reduced if development is to be stimulated.

"The problem with downtown is that we have so little land available there, and the fact that there has been no impetus for development down there," said Trustee Madeline Schroeder.

"I would hope that relaxing the parking requirements would have some impact. I think it's a step in the right direction," she said.

Mrs. Schroeder said Tuesday that consideration should be given to the possibility of "making some adjustment" to downtown property owners who already have paid large amounts of money in lieu of parking spaces, as required by the existing ordinance.

Trustee Robert Miller said he, too, initially did not believe it would be fair to change the parking requirements because of the property owners that already have paid into the parking fund.

"BUT, NOW THAT we're talking in terms of a major, multi-story development, I agree we must make some allowances," Miller said.

Miller said he is against eliminating the parking requirements entirely. Developers who cannot provide adequate off-street parking should be required to lease spaces in the parking garage, he said.

Trustee David Griffin predicted that the parking garage will be "a money loser" unless it causes an increase in the sales tax base and the property tax base in the central business district.

But Trustee Frank Palmatier said he is optimistic that the coupling of a parking garage with reduced parking requirements will spur development in the downtown area.

"Changing the parking requirements has to be coupled with a program of providing public parking by the village, starting with this garage, and in the long run, building additional public parking," Palmatier said.

"The parking requirements definitely have been a drawback. A development needs parking to be successful commercially. There are very strong indications that the village needs to get into the parking business on a bigger scale than they have," he said.

$1.3 million parks package OKd

A $1.3 million park development and improvement package was approved by the Arlington Heights Park District Board of Commissioners Tuesday as the second part of the Oct. 2 bond referendum.

The development and improvement package will be presented to voters along with a $1.5 million bond issue to develop an 18-hole golf course on the site of the former Nike Base, Central and Wilke roads. The two general obligation bond proposals will be separate questions on the ballot.

The improvement and development package will cover projects to upgrade existing facilities, increase revenue potential and create parks on district-owned land. Officials have said, and repeated Tuesday, that without the bond referendum the projects would have to be delayed indefinitely because of a lack of surplus funds in the park budget.

COMMISSIONERS considered a "laundry list" of possible improvements that would have cost about $2.3 million before settling on the items totaling $1.3 million.

The $1.3 million improvement package includes:

- $450,000 to develop district-owned land as neighborhood parks in the Northgate, Ivy Hill and Surrey Ridge subdivisions, and to develop the Centennial Park site in the northern part of the district.
- $80,000 for new tennis courts at Greenbrier, Dryden and Carefree parks.
- $50,000 for lighting five tennis courts adjacent to the Forest View Tennis Club.
- $270,000 to light athletic and softball fields at Recreation and Centennial parks and the Wilke-Kirchoff retention basin.
- $127,000 to light walkways and play areas in 15 parks throughout the district.
- $265,000 for two meeting rooms at Heritage Park, remodeled fieldhouses at Recreation and Hasbrook parks, and a remodeled bath house at Pioneer Park.

Dropped from the referendum package were:

- $60,000 for swimming pool heaters at four parks.
- $100,000 to develop a bicycle path along the Commonwealth Edison Co. right-of-way and McDonald Creek.
- $500,000 to develop a regional park featuring ski slopes, toboggan runs and a trap and skeet range at the land-fill site.
- $200,000 to build a gymnasium at Dryden School.
- $125,000 for one of two parks proposed in the Ivy Hill subdivision.

Commissioners said that while the eliminated items were desirable they did not carry the same priority as the ones approved.

State signs lease for test center

The six-year wait for a Northwest suburban driver testing center moved closer to an end Monday when state officials signed a two-year lease on a Schaumburg storefront at the southwest corner of Golf and Meacham roads near the Woodfield Shopping Center.

An aide to Sec. of State Michael J. Howlett said the facility, at 1231 E. Golf Rd., is expected to open "in a month, or slightly more."

In a press release, Howlett said the Schaumburg center will provide the full range of driver's license tests, including written, vision and road tests,

Achoo—the sneezin' season is almost over

by KURT BAER

If they can catch their breath, hay fever sufferers should be able to heave a sigh of relief sometime around the Labor Day weekend knowing that pollen and mold counts probably have reached their peak.

Hay fever has been less severe this summer than in some previous years because of the season's dry weather, says Gary Libman, a microbiologist at Abbott Laboratories, North Chicago.

"Pollen counts have been getting higher, but they're still 10 to 20 per cent less than in a real bad year. The dry weather is killing the farmers but it's helping the hay fever sufferers," Libman says.

ABBOTT LABORATORIES counts the amount of ragweed pollen and the spores of two molds — alternaria and hormodendrum — in the air and reports the numbers as a public service, on a recorded telephone message (688-5230).

Tuesday's counts were high enough to cause discomfort among people susceptible to hay fever, Libman says.

At 8:30 Tuesday morning, Abott measured ragweed pollen as 108 per cubic yard, alternaria as 19 per square centimeter and hormodendrum as 5 per square centimeter.

"Hay fever suffering is a relative term but generally most people will start feeling very uncomfortable when the pollen count goes over 100 and the spores are in the 80s or 90s," he says.

RAGWEED RELIES on the late summer winds to carry its pollen to other ragweed stems so that future generations of the green and gold plant can grow.

The plant is so drab that bees and other insects are not attracted to it as they are to other more colorful flowers.

Persons sensitive to ragweed pollen produce hystamines in their bodies which dilate blood vessels and produce the puffy eyes and runny nose so well-known among hay fever victims.

But ragweed does not bear the blame alone. Alternaria mold, which produces spores "shaped like little tennis rackets" and hormodendrum mold with spores "like webbed feet," also cause allergic reactions, Libman says.

BECAUSE THE molds can grow on both living and dead plants, their spores continue to fill the air until the first frost.

A new unknown in the old hay fever story is the possible effect of high levels of ozone on hay fever reaction.

"Ozone is a very powerful oxidizing agent," says Libman. But no conclusive tests have been made on the impact of ozone and other air pollutants on hay fever allergies.

The Chicago area has been put under several ozone alerts this summer by the Chicago Dept. of Environmental Control.

Libman says pollen and mold counts should start to tail off in September and he predicts levels will continue to be on the light side.

"It's a little bit like trying to predict the weather, but as long as it stays dry, we think the numbers will be a little less than usual."

Search farm today for missing girl

Mount Prospect police are using a thermograph machine early today to search 500 acres of farm land where a 14-year-old village girl was last seen Aug. 21. The machine, which can detect body heat underground, will be flown over the area by a Marine Corps helicopter in the search for Barbara Glueckert, 610 Russell St. The farm is located near Huntley and was the site of a rock concert the girl reportedly attended with 24-year-old Thomas Urlacher of Algonquin Shores. Urlacher is being sought by police in connection with the disappearance. Police suspect Urlacher is heading for California on a motorcycle he was seen riding last Thursday by friends.

Arlington cuts parking quota

Arlington Heights officials plan to cut in half parking requirements for new development downtown in a bid to encourage high-rise building growth in the central business district. The village board has directed Village Atty. Jack Siegel to draft a new ordinance reducing parking requirements for businesses in the central business district. The action came after the administration was directed to take the necessary steps for construction of a parking garage in the downtown shopping area. Existing parking requirements for downtown development "is the number one problem" in the central business district," Village Planner Joseph Kesler said.

Driver test site lease signed

Sec. of State Michael Howlett has signed a two-year lease for a Schaumburg building, ending a six-year wait for a driver testing center in the Northwest suburbs. A spokesman for Howlett said Tuesday the facility will open at 1231 E. Golf Rd. "in a month, or slightly more." Roger Restrom, a Howlett aide, said the Schaumburg center will provide a full range of driver's license services, including written, vision and road tests. No license plates will be sold at the facility, however, Restrom said. The opening of the center will end the need for Northwest suburban residents to rely on facilities in Elgin, Lombard, Libertyville or Chicago.

Des Plaines studies remap

Des Plaines officials are considering redrawing the city's aldermanic wards in order to adjust to population gains since 1970. They city last redistricted its wards based on the 1970 census which put Des Plaines' population at 57,350. A special census earlier this year showed a 1,411 gain because of recent annexations. In 1972, Des Plaines adjusted its wards so population did not vary more than 1 per cent of 7,165 — one-eight of the city's population.

Long court wait in scandal suit

A suit filed by Wheeling against officials and firms involved in the 1974 zoning shakedown scandal won't come to court "for at least a year," Village Atty. John Burke says. The suit was filed Aug. 24 and seeks $1 million in damages and return of all bribe money received by officials in the zoning scandal. The suit also asks restitution from the firms who paid bribes to officials in return for their influence in gaining favorable zoning decisions and other favors.

Holy Family reorganizes administration

Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, has reorganized its administration.

Sister M. Alexandra, who has been president of the hospital since it adopted a corporate management form in 1971, was made chairman of the governing board, a new position.

Sister M. Amata, formerly executive vice president, was named president of the hospital.

Donald Loftus, who joined Holy Family in 1974 as vice president of operations, has been named executive vice president, responsible for day-to-day operations of the hospital.

Other changes in Holy Family's staff include the appointment of Father Roger Wyse, who has been the hospital's chaplain, to the new position of director of pastoral care.

Fred Houdek, formerly director of personnel, will become one of two directors of patient services. George Planic, formerly director of support services, will become the other director of patient services.

A Holy Family spokesman said the administrative restructuring was done "to more effectively handle the complex business operations of a modern, comprehensive health care facility."

TV Tornado Warning

by Ed Landwehr

Out in Iowa a fellow has discovered a way to find tornadoes with the TV set.

Tornadoes are preceded by large bursts of electrical energy at a frequency close to that of Channel 2, about 20 to 30 minutes ahead of the dangerous wind.

This is what you do. First, turn to Channel 13 and turn down the brightness control until the screen is black. Second, switch to Channel 2 without readjusting any controls. Now the set is ready to warn you. If the screen lights up, it indicates a tornado near by. If the screen has horizontal bands that light up, it's just a severe electrical storm.

It has been shown that this is quite accurate. If you should be one of the unlucky ones that has lightning damage to your TV set, phone 255-0700. You'll probably find us at Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, down in the basement, huddled in the safest corner.

Arlington cuts parking quota

Arlington Heights officials plan to cut in half parking requirements for new development downtown in a bid to encourage high-rise building growth in the central business district. The village board has directed Village Atty. Jack Siegel to draft a new ordinance reducing parking requirements for businesses in the central business district. The action came after the administration was directed to take the necessary steps for construction of a parking garage in the downtown shopping area. Existing parking requirements for downtown development "is the number one problem" in the central business district," Village Planner Joseph Kesler said.

Driver test site lease signed

Sec. of State Michael Howlett has signed a two-year lease for a Schaumburg building, ending a six-year wait for a driver testing center in the Northwest suburbs. A spokesman for Howlett said Tuesday the facility will open at 1231 E. Golf Rd. "in a month, or slightly more." Roger Restrom, a Howlett aide, said the Schaumburg center will provide a full range of driver's license services, including written, vision and road tests. No license plates will be sold at the facility, however, Restrom said. The opening of the center will end the need for Northwest suburban residents to rely on facilities in Elgin, Lombard, Libertyville or Chicago.

Des Plaines studies remap

Des Plaines officials are considering redrawing the city's aldermanic wards in order to adjust to population gains since 1970. They city last redistricted its wards based on the 1970 census which put Des Plaines' population at 57,350. A special census earlier this year showed a 1,411 gain because of recent annexations. In 1972, Des Plaines adjusted its wards so population did not vary more than 1 per cent of 7,165 — one-eight of the city's population.

Long court wait in scandal suit

A suit filed by Wheeling against officials and firms involved in the 1974 zoning shakedown scandal won't come to court "for at least a year," Village Atty. John Burke says. The suit was filed Aug. 24 and seeks $1 million in damages and return of all bribe money received by officials in the zoning scandal. The suit also asks restitution from the firms who paid bribes to officials in return for their influence in gaining favorable zoning decisions and other favors.

Holy Family reorganizes administration

Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, has reorganized its administration.

Sister M. Alexandra, who has been president of the hospital since it adopted a corporate management form in 1971, was made chairman of the governing board, a new position.

Sister M. Amata, formerly executive vice president, was named president of the hospital.

Donald Loftus, who joined Holy Family in 1974 as vice president of operations, has been named executive vice president, responsible for day-to-day operations of the hospital.

Other changes in Holy Family's staff include the appointment of Father Roger Wyse, who has been the hospital's chaplain, to the new position of director of pastoral care.

Fred Houdek, formerly director of personnel, will become one of two directors of patient services. George Planic, formerly director of support services, will become the other director of patient services.

A Holy Family spokesman said the administrative restructuring was done "to more effectively handle the complex business operations of a modern, comprehensive health care facility."

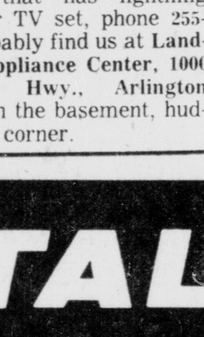
TV Tornado Warning



by Ed Landwehr

Out in Iowa a fellow has discovered a way to find tornadoes with the TV set.

Tornadoes are preceded by large bursts of electrical energy at a frequency close to that of Channel 2, about 20 to 30 minutes ahead of the dangerous wind.

This is what you do. First, turn to Channel 13 and turn down the brightness control until the screen is black. Second, switch to Channel 2 without readjusting any controls. Now the set is ready to warn you. If the screen lights up, it indicates a tornado near by. If the screen has horizontal bands that light up, it's just a severe electrical storm.

It has been shown that this is quite accurate. If you should be one of the unlucky ones that has lightning damage to your TV set, phone 255-0700. You'll probably find us at Landwehr's TV & Appliance Center, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, down in the basement, huddled in the safest corner.

Harris pair handed maximum sentence

WILLIAM HARRIS

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — William and Emily Harris were sentenced Tuesday to 11 years to life imprisonment on charges out of a 1974 flight following a shooting incident also involving Patricia Hearst.

The Symbionese Liberation Army revolutionaries were given the maximum penalty by Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler on charges of armed robbery, kidnaping and auto theft.

Brandler handed down the sentences after long defiant courtroom statements by the two former Indiana University sweethearts who declared they were revolutionaries and would remain so.

Mrs Harris, 29, who turned away from the judge and addressed herself rather to the reporters and spectators behind a bullet-proof glass partition, said: "I could not stoop so low as to ask Judge Brandler for mercy."

"I'm a revolutionary in a court where a judge in a few minutes is going to take great pleasure in locking me in prison."

She assailed him as a "vengeful maniac" for his rulings on the bench during the lengthy trial.

Wiliam Harris, 31, also delivered a lengthy speech from a lectern in the courtroom.

"We are going to prison not because we are a danger to society but because our ideas are a threat to society."

At the end, he turned to Brandler and said: "Bring on the jugglers and the dancing bears and get this charade over."

The sentences were 10 years to life for first degree robbery with use of a firearm, 11 to 25 years for kidnaping with the use of a firearm and one to five years for auto theft.

Judge Brandler noted that those were the terms prescribed by law but said he intends to notify the California Adult Authority which administers paroles in the state that it was his opinon both defendants should serve lengthy terms.

Defense Attorney Leonard Weinglass said the sentence could be interpreted to mean a minimum term of 15 years but Judge Brandler told a reporter after the trial that he interpreted it to mean a minimum of 11 years.

The Harrises will be eligible to apply for parole after serving one third of their sentence, which means they could make such application in about 3½ years since they have already been in custody for almost 12 months.

Weinglass spoke with reporters in the corridor after the trial and said, "For two persons with no prior records who did not fire a gun and did no damage to property, the penalty is somewhat harsh."

The charges stemmed from an incident in May, 1974, at an Inglewood sporting goods store when Miss Hearst opened fire with a submachine-gun to help the SLA members escape apprehension for a shoplifting.

In the subsequent 24 hours, the trio commandeered four cars, abducted two of the owners and stole a wallet and $250 from one of them.

Judge Brandler directed that William Harris be remanded to the state prison at Chino, Calif., and that Mrs. Harris be sent to the California Institution for women.

State of emergency asked by Cosgrave to crush IRA

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Prime Minister Liam Cosgrave asked Parliament Tuesday to declare a state of national emergency and give him sweeping new powers to crush the Irish Republican Army "once and for all."

Cosgrave told a specially summoned session of Parliament that the IRA was "an armed conspiracy against lives and democratic government."

"Let the message go out clearly from here today," Cosgrave told the hushed, packed parliament. "The Irish people, through their elected representatives, their democratic government and their security forces, are pledged to break and rid our country once and for all of this conspiracy of hate and evil."

Former Prime Minister Jack Lynch, speaking for Fianna Fail, the main parliamentary opposition, pledged his support in fighting the IRA which he described as the "enemies of the Irish people." But he said he would oppose the declaration of an emergency as "unnecessary."

"The events referred to by the government do not justify the declaration of a state of emergency," Lynch said. But he promised he would support most of the drastic new security measures demanded by the government.

The measures included increasing the penalty for IRA membership from two to seven years and the imposition of a maximum 10-year sentence for inciting others to join the IRA.

Lynch said the opposition would seek to have other provisions amended, including the expansion of the army's role by giving it police powers of search and arrest.

SECRETARY OF STATE Henry Kissinger is hugged by Helen Hinkson after he addressed black oriented Opportunities Industrialization Center about unrest in South Africa. Kissinger called South Africa's racial segregation law as "incompatible with any sense of human dignity."

South Africa's white rule lashed in Kissinger talk

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said Tuesday South Africa's white government has denied that country's black majority equality and political rights and was "incompatible with any sense of human dignity."

Kissinger, addressing the black oriented Opportunities Industriaiization Center convention, told a luncheon gathering of about 500 persons that "no system which leads to periodic upheavals and violence can possibly be just or acceptable — nor can it last."

As Kissinger spoke, about a dozen pickets paraded outside the Civic Center with signs proclaiming "Independence for South Africa" and "remember the Soweto Massacre," a reference to the violence that has occurred in student demonstrations there.

"South Africa's internal structure is incompatible with any sense of human dignity," Kissinger said.

"We are deeply saddened by the recent and continuing pressures in black townships, universities and schools throughout South Africa." He said they "are a dramatic evidence of the frustrations of black Africans toward the system which denies them a status, equality, and political rights."

The apartheid South Africa is ruled by whites and inhabited overwhelmingly by blacks.

Kissinger, in an apparent attempt not to estrange South Africa because of that government's "constructive help" in attempts to solve problems in Nambia and Rhodesia, said the world and most black African leaders recognize the rights of whites to live peacefully in South Africa.

"Its white settlers have lived on African soil for centuries. No one, including the responsible leaders of black Africa, challenges their rights to remain there," he said.

Kissinger is to meet this Saturday in Zurich, Switzerland with South African Premier John Vorster in a second round of talks to discuss the unrest.

The Rev. Leon H. Sullivan, founder of the Opportunities Industrialization Centers and its board chairman, told the luncheon he met with Kissinger last July 9 and "we discussed Africa generally, and South Africa in particular."

At the United Nations, meantime, Black African nations called on the Security Council to impose sanctions against South Africa to force it to give up South West Africa (Nambia).

Henri Rasolondraibe, charge of Madagascar, told the Council an Aug. 18 resolution by a constitutional conference in Windhoek, South West Africa, did not meet U.N. conditions for the independence of the territory.

The U.N. deadline for a South African commitment to those conditions expired Tuesday.

As a result, Rasolondraibe said the Council should declare that South Africa is waging a "war of aggression" against South West Africa and impose economic and other sanctions against the white regime under Chapter 7 of the U.N. Charter.

"These measures, he added, could "go as far as exclusion" from the United Nations.

The Pretoria government was expelled from General Assembly sessions in 1973 and 1974 but participates in a number of other U.N. activities.

Two food colors face FDA ban

The Food and Drug Administration is considering a ban on two widely used food colorings — the red used in maraschino cherries and the black used for licorice and jelly beans. The possible bans result from a major review of scores of food colorings and dyes which never have won final safety approval from the FDA. The two food colors are Red No. 4 and "Carbon Black." The red coloring is used only in maraschino cherries, the black for various food products including candy.

Gas tanker blast kills 3, hurts 28

A gasoline tanker exploded Tuesday at a service station in Gadsden, Ala., setting off at least two other explosions and a fire which killed three firemen and injured 28 other persons. Included among the injured were other firemen and spectators who rushed to the scene after the initial blast. The explosions destroyed the truck, leveled the gas station and destroyed other vehicles parked nearby.

Chiropractors tell of Medicaid cheating

Two New York chiropractors who are about to serve terms for fraud and other charges Tuesday said many Medicaid clinics are cheating taxpayers and at the same time giving bad medical service to the poor. "Everybody is cheating," chiropractor Joseph H. Ingber told a Senate subcommittee on problems of the aging. Another chiropractor, Sheldon M. Styles, told of clinics collecting 20 to 25 per cent kickbacks from pharmacies to which they referred patients.

London rioting blamed on 'hooligans'

Scotland Yard Tuesday blamed teen-aged "black hooligans" who used a Calypso carnival to rob black celebrants for the rioting which injured 456, mostly policemen. Black leaders blamed police who made the crowds "nervous." Metropolitan Police Commissioner Sir Robert Mark said a total of 325 policemen and 131 civilians were injured in the riots Monday night in the racially-mixed Notting Hill area of London and it was "fortunate" that nobody had been killed. The riots were the worst in London since 1958 when the same Notting Hill area exploded in bloody riots.

Carter's abortion position nixed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter failed Tuesday to persuade Roman Catholic bishops that his attitude toward abortion is acceptable to the church, leaving them "disappointed" and determined to make the matter a campaign issue.

Taking his case to the Catholic leadership much as John F. Kennedy took his to Protestant ministers in 1960 — but with no such dramatic results — Carter, a southern Baptist, held a one hour meeting on the abortion issue with executives of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and the U.S. Catholic Conference.

The atmosphere was described as cool, correct and "courteous." Carter left without talking to reporters. The bishops said they rejected his position on abortion and will now seek a meeting with President Ford, whose views presumably would accord more closely with their own.

"Mr. Carter's personal opposition (to abortion) is not enough," said Archbishop Joseph Bernardin of Cincinnati, president of the national bishop's conference.

"We continue to be disappointed and repeat our call for a constitutional amendment banning abortion," he said.

"We will very carefully and very forcefully continue to address the issue of abortion."

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said Carter considered the exchange "very worthwhile" and that the Catholic churchmen "understand his point of view better."

He said the two sides have agreed to exchange information again.

The friction between Carter and the Roman Catholic hierarchy stems from the Democratic campaign platform, which takes note of widespread personal opposition to legalized abortion but puts the party on record as opposing a constitutional amendment barring abortion.

Carter, who has conceded he may have a problem winning the Catholic vote, has said he personally opposes abortion and disapproves of any party attempt to discourage Americans from seeking a constitutional amendment against it.

But he would not press for such an amendment himself as president. The Republican platform favors an anti-abortion amendment outright.

Ford park message to Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford sent to Congress Tuesday his $1.5 billion proposal to upgrade and double the size of the nation's park and recreation areas, telling Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe, "Make them all as good as Yellowstone."

Signing his message to Congress, Ford called his 10-year program "one of the soundest investments in the future of America.

Congressional officials, however, say there is little chance for the measure to pass since it was proposed so late in the legislative session.

Ford's proposed Bicentennial Land Heritage Act to double the size of the nation's park and recreation area depends heavily on millions of acres in Alaska which the government already owns by virtue of a 1971 agreement called the Alaska Native Claims Act.

Ford also proposes to use for land acquisition $141 million which President Nixon impounded from the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund in past years. The program also proposes $700 million to develop parks and refuges and $459 million for upgrading existing facilities.

Viking I biology tests 'inconclusive'

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A Viking scientist, summing up a review of the spacecraft's findings on the Martian surface, said Tuesday the results of the biology experiments are "inconclusive" and not understood.

"The biological experiment is inconclusive at this time but has yielded some clues to the chemistry of the surface," Gerald Soffen, chief project scientist, said.

"The chemistry is going to be complicated on Mars," he said. "Anybody who thinks he understands it, I think, is wrong. We don't understand it."

He said, however, there was no doubt about the success of Viking.

"We have landed a spacecraft on surface of Mars and we have some remarkable data."

Dr. Joshua Lederberg, a member of the biology team, discussed the needs of future missions and said he could imagine a "Son of Viking" program.

He suggested the north polar ice cap as a candidate for a future landing site.

"The polar regions are prime candidates for understanding the planet and even, paradoxically, for biology despite the extreme temperatures," he said.

Lederberg, of Stanford University, said also that if life exists on Mars it has found a different adaptation than life forms on Earth.

"We can no longer be confident," he said, "that no matter where you look you will find life."

Lederberg said he was an advocate of more time and more research between space missions, but added, "I can imagine a Son-of-Viking program to take advantage of the investments in the spacecraft now available."

Dr. Richard W. Shorthill said he proclaimed Tuesday as "physical and magnetic properties day" because his team finally got the computer and transmission time to perform some of the experiments they have requested. Among them, he said, will be to bury the scoop head in the Martian dust for about 10 minutes to get an accurate temperature reading.

Dr. Hal Masursky, of the orbiter imaging team, said Viking 2 pictures indicate it will be safe to put the half-billion dollar robot on the Utopia Plains.

The explosions destroyed the truck, leveled the gas station and destroyed other vehicles parked nearby.

Chiropractors tell of Medicaid cheating

Two New York chiropractors who are about to serve terms for fraud and other charges Tuesday said many Medicaid clinics are cheating taxpayers and at the same time giving bad medical service to the poor. "Everybody is cheating," chiropractor Joseph H. Ingber told a Senate subcommittee on problems of the aging. Another chiropractor, Sheldon M. Styles, told of clinics collecting 20 to 25 per cent kickbacks from pharmacies to which they referred patients.

London rioting blamed on 'hooligans'

Scotland Yard Tuesday blamed teen-aged "black hooligans" who used a Calypso carnival to rob black celebrants for the rioting which injured 456, mostly policemen. Black leaders blamed police who made the crowds "nervous." Metropolitan Police Commissioner Sir Robert Mark said a total of 325 policemen and 131 civilians were injured in the riots Monday night in the racially-mixed Notting Hill area of London and it was "fortunate" that nobody had been killed. The riots were the worst in London since 1958 when the same Notting Hill area exploded in bloody riots.

Carter's abortion position nixed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Jimmy Carter failed Tuesday to persuade Roman Catholic bishops that his attitude toward abortion is acceptable to the church, leaving them "disappointed" and determined to make the matter a campaign issue.

Taking his case to the Catholic leadership much as John F. Kennedy took his to Protestant ministers in 1960 — but with no such dramatic results — Carter, a southern Baptist, held a one hour meeting on the abortion issue with executives of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and the U.S. Catholic Conference.

The atmosphere was described as cool, correct and "courteous." Carter left without talking to reporters. The bishops said they rejected his position on abortion and will now seek a meeting with President Ford, whose views presumably would accord more closely with their own.

"Mr. Carter's personal opposition (to abortion) is not enough," said Archbishop Joseph Bernardin of Cincinnati, president of the national bishop's conference.

"We continue to be disappointed and repeat our call for a constitutional amendment banning abortion," he said.

"We will very carefully and very forcefully continue to address the issue of abortion."

Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, said Carter considered the exchange "very worthwhile" and that the Catholic churchmen "understand his point of view better."

He said the two sides have agreed to exchange information again.

The friction between Carter and the Roman Catholic hierarchy stems from the Democratic campaign platform, which takes note of widespread personal opposition to legalized abortion but puts the party on record as opposing a constitutional amendment barring abortion.

Carter, who has conceded he may have a problem winning the Catholic vote, has said he personally opposes abortion and disapproves of any party attempt to discourage Americans from seeking a constitutional amendment against it.

But he would not press for such an amendment himself as president. The Republican platform favors an anti-abortion amendment outright.

Ford park message to Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford sent to Congress Tuesday his $1.5 billion proposal to upgrade and double the size of the nation's park and recreation areas, telling Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe, "Make them all as good as Yellowstone."

Signing his message to Congress, Ford called his 10-year program "one of the soundest investments in the future of America.

Congressional officials, however, say there is little chance for the measure to pass since it was proposed so late in the legislative session.

Ford's proposed Bicentennial Land Heritage Act to double the size of the nation's park and recreation area depends heavily on millions of acres in Alaska which the government already owns by virtue of a 1971 agreement called the Alaska Native Claims Act.

Ford also proposes to use for land acquisition $141 million which President Nixon impounded from the federal Land and Water Conservation Fund in past years. The program also proposes $700 million to develop parks and refuges and $459 million for upgrading existing facilities.

Viking I biology tests 'inconclusive'

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — A Viking scientist, summing up a review of the spacecraft's findings on the Martian surface, said Tuesday the results of the biology experiments are "inconclusive" and not understood.

"The biological experiment is inconclusive at this time but has yielded some clues to the chemistry of the surface," Gerald Soffen, chief project scientist, said.

"The chemistry is going to be complicated on Mars," he said. "Anybody who thinks he understands it, I think, is wrong. We don't understand it."

He said, however, there was no doubt about the success of Viking.

"We have landed a spacecraft on surface of Mars and we have some remarkable data."

Dr. Joshua Lederberg, a member of the biology team, discussed the needs of future missions and said he could imagine a "Son of Viking" program.

He suggested the north polar ice cap as a candidate for a future landing site.

"The polar regions are prime candidates for understanding the planet and even, paradoxically, for biology despite the extreme temperatures," he said.

Lederberg, of Stanford University, said also that if life exists on Mars it has found a different adaptation than life forms on Earth.

"We can no longer be confident," he said, "that no matter where you look you will find life."

Lederberg said he was an advocate of more time and more research between space missions, but added, "I can imagine a Son-of-Viking program to take advantage of the investments in the spacecraft now available."

Dr. Richard W. Shorthill said he proclaimed Tuesday as "physical and magnetic properties day" because his team finally got the computer and transmission time to perform some of the experiments they have requested. Among them, he said, will be to bury the scoop head in the Martian dust for about 10 minutes to get an accurate temperature reading.

Dr. Hal Masursky, of the orbiter imaging team, said Viking 2 pictures indicate it will be safe to put the half-billion dollar robot on the Utopia Plains.

Lottery officials clarify ruling

If you are one of six holders of a winning Double Derby ticket who has not collected your $5,000 win, you have missed your chance to particiate in the millionaire's drawing Saturday. But unlike what the Illinois State Lottery announced Aug. 25, you have until next July 17 to collect your $5,000. There were red faces all around Tuesday when Illinois Lottery Supt. Ralph F. Batch announced that he got it all wrong Aug. 25.

"Part of that statement was wrong and the public should know we made an error and we apologize for it," Batch said. On Aug. 25, he announced that six $5,000 winners out of 22 had until Aug. 31 to register to get their money and earn their right to take part in Saturday's drawing where the prize is $1 million. But after looking up the rules again, lottery officials found that all six had in fact lost their right to take part in Saturday's drawing by failing to register by July 17. On the other hand, the $5,000 checks are theirs if they only claim them before July 17, 1977.

Betty Ford to open folk fest

First Lady Betty Ford will open the fifth Lithuanian Folk Dance Festival next Sunday at the International Amphitheatre, a festival spokesman said Tuesday. The spokesman said Mrs. Ford will declare the festival open at 2 p.m. A sellout crowd of 12,000 is expected for the festival, which will feature 2,000 Lithuanian dancers from the United States, Canada, Brazil, Venezuela, Germany and Great Britain.

Revenue chief hints at new job

Illinois Revenue Director Robert H. Allphin Tuesday said in Chicago he was being considered for at least two job with the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue. Allphin, accused this week by a former aide of trying to cover up illegal activities by the state revenue department, said his wife and four children have moved to Harrisburg, Pa., so the children would be there in time for the fall semester.

However, Allphin said he would remain in office throughut the term of Gov. Daniel Walker, who appointed him. Allphin confirmed reports he is being considered to reorganize the Pennsylvania Department of Revenue, and for a post in the department's legal section.

Thompson gets lemonade profits

Out of the total $1,326,781 in campaign contributions received by Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson, three dollars came from Eric Peterson's lemonade stand in Morris, Ill. Eric, 10, sent his contribution along with a letter, in which he explained that the money was his profit from a lemonade stand he had run in his hometown.

He noted that Thompson had told him a 10-year-old couldn't vote, but he could join the campaign ringing door bells. "I decided adults might not listen to a 10-year-old boy, so I decided to have a lemonade stand instead. I'm sending you my profits for your campaign. Good luck, your friend Eric."

Four drown in lake boat outing

Four persons, all wearing lifejackets, were found drowned near a capsized boat in Lake Michigan Tuesday, Chicago police said. The 19-foot boat was found floating upside down in the lake some five miles offshore by another boater, and a police boat and a Coast Guard helicopter later located the four bodies within a mile of the capsized craft.

Police tentatively identified one of the victims as Ronald Guterz, 28, Chicago, the owner of the boat. The other victims — one man and two women — were not immediately identified. Police also found a car and a boat trailer, believed to belong to Guterz, parked at a lakeshore pier. Guterz' mother said her son left home Monday evening with his boat for a boat ride on the lake.

Bill to help cities changed by Walker

Gov. Daniel Walker Tuesday used his amendatory veto to add 10 provisions to a bill that would give cities a new tool for redevelopment of blighted areas. The governor said he will approve the bill (S1945) if the legislature accepts the changes.

The procedure is called incremental tax financing and permits cities to issue bonds and use the proceeds to buy blighted areas, generally in the inner city. The city then could improve the area by demolition of existing structures and updating of utilities and sell the property to a developer. The city would recoup its investment through increased property tax payments on the improved property.

Walker's changes include:

A requirement that all action be taken by formal, public municipal procedures and through competitive bidding.

- Limitation of bonding to capital items, rather than day-to-day operations costs.
- Prohibition against conflicts of interest on the part of public officials involved.

Strikers in 4 school districts

Teachers in four Illinois school districts were on strike Tuesday, affecting more than 19,000 grade school and high school students throughout the state. George King, a spokesman for the Illinois Education Assn., said school districts being struck were Harrisburg 3; Collinsville 10; Marion 2, and Markham School Dist. 144. Harrisburg teachers went on strike last Wednesday, Collinsville and Marion teachers both walked off their jobs Monday and Markham teachers struck Tuesday. Teachers in Blue Island High School Dist. 218, which has about 7,600 students, voted Monday to authorize the union to take a strike vote.

Jail escapees indicted

Five prisoners who escaped from the United States Penitentiary at Marion last year were indicted Tuesday by a federal grand jury. The five — Arthur Mankins, Henry Gargano, Maurice Philion, Edward Roche and Dennis Hunter — were charged with escape and aiding and abetting an escape.

Mankins also was indicted on weapons charges involving possession of a sawed-off shotgun. The men escaped the evening of Oct. 19, 1975, setting off an intensive manhunt throughout Southern Illinois. Mankins was captured in Salem Oct. 12 by Salem police. Philion and Roche were recaptured Oct. 13 by Marion County sheriff's officers and FBI agents. Gargano was arrested in Bloomfield, Ind., on Oct. 14 by sheriffs officers. Hunter was recaptured Oct. 30, during a robbery in Winnipeg, Manitoba. He is still being held by Canadian authorities. Each of the men faces a maximum additional sentence of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine.

High court bans honesty articles from fall ballot

by STEVE BROWN

The Illinois Supreme Court Tuesday killed the Coalition for Political Honesty's effort to place three constitutional amendments on the ballot in November.

The high court, without announcing a vote or issuing a formal opinion, upheld a ruling by Cook County Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen that the three proposed amendments were too vague, unconstitutional and discriminatory against legislators.

"Our hopes were dashed today," said Patrick Quinn, one of the coalition leaders. He said there might be a chance for appeal through the federal courts, but the chances to get the amendments on the November ballot seemed unlikely.

THE AMENDMENT would have prohibited lawmakers from collecting pay in advance, outlawed double dipping and strenghtened the state conflict of interest laws.

"The decision effectively prohibits initiative efforts and closes the door on grassroots politics in this state," Quinn added.

One of the leading opponents to the amendment, Samuel Witwer Sr., viewed the court decision as further protection "for the cause of good government in Illinois."

Witwer, the president of the 1970 Illinois Constitutional Convention, had sued to keep the proposed amendments off the ballot.

"The coalition efforts were a help to eliminate that miserable prepayment clause," he added. The legislature had voted to end the practice of allowing lawmakers to take their salaries two years in advance but did not move to make monthly payment mandatory until the coalition effort was started.

THE COALITION had collected more than 630,000 signatures to get the amendments on the ballot. Quinn noted that the failure of the coalition's efforts might fuel a drive to change the law regarding initiative efforts in Illinois. Current Illinois law allows citizen initiatives only on matters regarding the legislature. Some states, including California and Oregon, permit initiative votes on a wide range of issues.

Quinn admitted that the desire to start such a drive might be dampened by the Supreme Court ruling.

"We shook up the politicians and I don't think they will be able to ignore the people so much in the future," he added.

Witwer said he believes other amendmtnt efforts "if properly drafted" and done in accordance with the constitution would be proper.

Last week the State Board of Elections ruled that the amendments would not be included on the November ballot.

Township OKs tax cut for roads

The Wheeling Township Board of Auditors Tuesday night approved a revised township highway department budget that will lower road maintenance tax levies for township residents next year.

The 1976-77 budget was lowered from $645,263 to $480,000 because of the incorporation of the City of Prospect Heights last May. The total appropriation drops 26 per cent under the revised budget.

Township residents will be levied 8 cents per $100 assessed valuation or $8 in annual road and bridge taxes for the owner of a house assessed at $10,000. The original budget would have meant a levy of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation, or $10 in taxes for a house assessed at $10,000.

HIGHWAY COMR. Arthur Olsen explained that the savings came from salaries, gas and oil, street lighting, road oil and other supplies and materials that would have been used to reduced budget is based on item cost maintain roads in Prospect Heights.

Auditor Ray DeMaetelaere said the reductions from the original budget, not on the percentage of Prospect Heights roads formerly served by the district.

The original road and bridge district budget was based on road maintenance expenses from the previous year, Olsen said.

With the incorporation of Prospect Heights, road maintenance costs will be split evenly between the township and Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Wheeling, Mount Prospect and a portion of Des Plaines, which are all within township boundaries.

The district discontinued service to Prospect Heights on May 25, almost four months into the fiscal year. The district has submitted an offer to contract with the city for road service, but Prospect Heights has not accepted.

Representatives of Prospect Heights appeared at a public hearing held prior to the budget approval to question Olsen on the road and bridge district's relationship with the city.

State signs storefront lease for testing center

Chicago testing stations on Elston Avenue, Lexington Avenue and King Drive sell plates.

UNTIL THE Schaumburg center opens, residents of Northwest Cook County will continue to rely on the facilities in Elgin, Lombard, Libertyville or 5401 N. Elston Ave., Chicago.

Howlett said "long and exhaustive studies" were conducted and many alternatives explored before "deciding to lease the facility and, specifically, to locate in the Schaumburg site."

"Our detailed analyses show a facility is needed now, and we concluded it would be most economical and expeditious to lease a facility that can be put into opertion quickly," he said.

The state will pay $3,122.72 per month for the 4,428-square-foot office, Howlett said. The state also will pay for all utilities.

Colt Landreth of the J. Emil Anderson & Sons leasing agency said the state's annual cost of $8.46 per square foot includes the agency's cost of remodeling the office.

ALTHOUGH THE remodeling contract was awarded after public bidding, Landreth said he did not know the name of the contractor or the cost of the work because the lease was "figured as a total package."

Howlett said the testing center, expected to handle an estimated 700 applicants each day, will employ 26 persons when it reaches full strength "in a few months." He said most center personnel will be reassigned from other driver testing stations, explaining the Schaumburg center will "take the load off other places."

Since the search for a testing site began in 1970, locations in Arlington Heights, Palatine, Barrington and another Schaumburg site were considered and rejected.

State officials say the Schaumburg location was chosen because of its central location and accessibility to major highways.

Schaumburg officials say road testing will be limited to hours between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., although the center will open at 8 a.m.

Road tests will be conducted on streets adjacent to Woodfield Shopping Center, not in the parking lot adjacent to the testing center.

Township OKs tax cut for roads

The Wheeling Township Board of Auditors Tuesday night approved a revised township highway department budget that will lower road maintenance tax levies for township residents next year.

The 1976-77 budget was lowered from $645,263 to $480,000 because of the incorporation of the City of Prospect Heights last May. The total appropriation drops 26 per cent under the revised budget.

Township residents will be levied 8 cents per $100 assessed valuation or $8 in annual road and bridge taxes for the owner of a house assessed at $10,000. The original budget would have meant a levy of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation, or $10 in taxes for a house assessed at $10,000.

HIGHWAY COMR. Arthur Olsen explained that the savings came from salaries, gas and oil, street lighting, road oil and other supplies and materials that would have been used to reduced budget is based on item cost maintain roads in Prospect Heights.

Auditor Ray DeMaetelaere said the reductions from the original budget, not on the percentage of Prospect Heights roads formerly served by the district.

The original road and bridge district budget was based on road maintenance expenses from the previous year, Olsen said.

With the incorporation of Prospect Heights, road maintenance costs will be split evenly between the township and Prospect Heights, Arlington Heights, Wheeling, Mount Prospect and a portion of Des Plaines, which are all within township boundaries.

The district discontinued service to Prospect Heights on May 25, almost four months into the fiscal year. The district has submitted an offer to contract with the city for road service, but Prospect Heights has not accepted.

Representatives of Prospect Heights appeared at a public hearing held prior to the budget approval to question Olsen on the road and bridge district's relationship with the city.

State signs storefront lease for testing center

but not license plate sales.

Chicago testing stations on Elston Avenue, Lexington Avenue and King Drive sell plates.

UNTIL THE Schaumburg center opens, residents of Northwest Cook County will continue to rely on the facilities in Elgin, Lombard, Libertyville or 5401 N. Elston Ave., Chicago.

Howlett said "long and exhaustive studies" were conducted and many alternatives explored before "deciding to lease the facility and, specifically, to locate in the Schaumburg site."

"Our detailed analyses show a facility is needed now, and we concluded it would be most economical and expeditious to lease a facility that can be put into opertion quickly," he said.

The state will pay $3,122.72 per month for the 4,428-square-foot office, Howlett said. The state also will pay for all utilities.

Colt Landreth of the J. Emil Anderson & Sons leasing agency said the state's annual cost of $8.46 per square foot includes the agency's cost of remodeling the office.

ALTHOUGH THE remodeling contract was awarded after public bidding, Landreth said he did not know the name of the contractor or the cost of the work because the lease was "figured as a total package."

Howlett said the testing center, expected to handle an estimated 700 applicants each day, will employ 26 persons when it reaches full strength "in a few months." He said most center personnel will be reassigned from other driver testing stations, explaining the Schaumburg center will "take the load off other places."

Since the search for a testing site began in 1970, locations in Arlington Heights, Palatine, Barrington and another Schaumburg site were considered and rejected.

State officials say the Schaumburg location was chosen because of its central location and accessibility to major highways.

Schaumburg officials say road testing will be limited to hours between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m., although the center will open at 8 a.m.

Road tests will be conducted on streets adjacent to Woodfield Shopping Center, not in the parking lot adjacent to the testing center.

McDonald Creek work to wrap up by next week

A $300,000 state flood-control project on McDonald Creek in Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights will be completed next week, a state official said Tuesday.

The project, which was started in April and financed by the state, is designed to curtail flooding problems along the creek, which flows into the Des Plaines River.

The creek has been rerouted under the new culvert to relieve flooding problems upstream and improve water flow through downstream areas, said Donald Vonnahme, assistant director of the state division of water resources.

Brush, trees and other obstructions also have been removed from along the creek banks from Kensington Road to the river.

Vonnahme said the Bongi Cartage Co., Chicago Heights, contractor for the project, will finish minor work along the creek by the end of next week.

Swimming pools empty and car pools fill up today as children in the Northwest suburbs return to school.

The nervous glances and wistful goodbyes to mom in the morning will be replaced by new friends and "Whodjagets?" when the afternoon dismissal bell rings.

There will be reunions with old friends, after suffering the two-month separation of vacations and summer camp.

THE COMFORT OF gym shoes will be traded in for sturdy saddle shoes. Parents will try to convince their youngsters that even though it's the first day of school, woolen sweaters are not suited for 80-degree heat.

Children in some Northwest suburban school districts will not return to their old schools this fall. School closings and boundary changes, which shook up parents and school boards last spring, will mean exciting adventures for some children today.

For some students, their school will open for the first time and they will have the thrill of being the first to occupy shiny, wooden desks.

For others a new school will mean a bus ride for a few miles instead of a walk to the school around the corner.

THE YOUNGSTERS who are taking a step up to junior high and high school will try to master computer scheduling, five-minute pass periods and seven trachers instead of one.

Several local school districts will give students a reprieve until next week, delaying school opening until atfer Labor Day.

But if you ask any kid getting in that last lazy afternoon in the tree house, or any parent rushing to purchase a new set of crayons, you'll find there's no doubt about it — summer is over.

Suburban crime to rise for four years: officials

by TONI GINNETTI

Suburban crime, particularly thefts and assaults, will continue to rise for up to four more years, according to area crime prevention experts.

But the number of persons victimized by crime will likely remain substantially lower than in Chicago, the experts say.

Figures for the first four months of 1976 compiled by the Chicago Crime Commission show a 90 per cent increase in the rate of thefts compared to 1975, Stephen Schiller, commisson executive director, said Tuesday. Vehicle thefts rose 75 per cent while assaults rose 30 per cent and burglaries rose 16 per cent, he said.

He cited the figures as evidence of crime patterns which indicate a trend of suburban crime increasing at a faster rate than that of the cities.

"I DON'T KNOW if it will increase at an even faster rate by the end of the year, but if the rate continues as it is, it's pretty bad," Schiller said. "But the suburbs are still in heck of a better shape than Chicago. The rate of victimization in the suburbs is still much lower than in the city.

"But the fact of the matter is with theft offenses, you will see an increase for the next several years, and by that I mean the next two, three or four years," Schiller said.

Figures released last week by the Federal Bureau of Investigation showed a 10 per cent over-all increase in the nationwide suburban crime rate in 1975 compared to a 7 per cent rise in the rate for cities of more than 250,000.

AREA POLICE CHIEFS say the crime increase will stabilize, a theory with which Schiller agrees. But he added, "the metro area is the metro area and the impact of a criminal population on the suburbs has been overdue."

Magnus Seng, associate director of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, said Tuesday the suburban crime rise is related to "a number of factors."

"It's partly population shift, partly better highways and better mobility," he said. "The increase is going to be there."

Seng and commission chairman Gene Eidenberg said juvenile crime is the single most important factor contributing to the suburban crime pattern.

"It is the major cause," Eidenberg said.

"THE HIGHEST GROUP is the older juvenile or the young adult," Seng said. "That's where the action seems to be."

Greater tolerance of diverse lifestyles also has affected crime, Schiller said. He said those who formerly were considered "strangers" in the suburbs, such as blacks or minorities, now move more freely outside the city.

"While socially that can be a good thing, it does contribute to a person's ability to move around the county anonymously," Schiller said.

Seng said trends show that as a community grows, its crime rate starts out low, climbs and peaks and finally stabilizes.

"That doesn't mean that we're going to sit back and wait for it to stabilize," he added. "We have to keep doing things to try to prevent it. We have to improve policing, court processing and programs. But it (crime) is going to be there."

SCHILLER SAID figures which show a 50 per cent increase in rape and a 33 per cent increase in homicide in the suburbs in the first quarter of 1976 are deceptive because the number of total incidents of these crimes remains low.

But he added that assaults are "relatively high in frequency, and the increase there does alarm."

Effective crime prevention in the suburbs will require organized cooperation among suburban and area law enforcement agencies, Schiller said.

"I think one of the primary things would be to establish a countywide pattern of crime analysis," he said. Such a network could aid law enforcement agencies to identify patterns of criminals working in the city and suburbs and enhance the likelihood of anticipating crimes and apprehending offenders, he said.

"I don't think we have to spend more money on police departments," he said. "I think we're going to need a formalized means for departments collaborating."

Swimming pools empty and car pools fill up today as children in the Northwest suburbs return to school.

The nervous glances and wistful goodbyes to mom in the morning will be replaced by new friends and "Whodjagets?" when the afternoon dismissal bell rings.

There will be reunions with old friends, after suffering the two-month separation of vacations and summer camp.

THE COMFORT OF gym shoes will be traded in for sturdy saddle shoes. Parents will try to convince their youngsters that even though it's the first day of school, woolen sweaters are not suited for 80-degree heat.

Children in some Northwest suburban school districts will not return to their old schools this fall. School closings and boundary changes, which shook up parents and school boards last spring, will mean exciting adventures for some children today.

For some students, their school will open for the first time and they will have the thrill of being the first to occupy shiny, wooden desks.

For others a new school will mean a bus ride for a few miles instead of a walk to the school around the corner.

THE YOUNGSTERS who are taking a step up to junior high and high school will try to master computer scheduling, five-minute pass periods and seven trachers instead of one.

Several local school districts will give students a reprieve until next week, delaying school opening until atfer Labor Day.

But if you ask any kid getting in that last lazy afternoon in the tree house, or any parent rushing to purchase a new set of crayons, you'll find there's no doubt about it — summer is over.

Suburban crime to rise for four years: officials

by TONI GINNETTI

Suburban crime, particularly thefts and assaults, will continue to rise for up to four more years, according to area crime prevention experts.

But the number of persons victimized by crime will likely remain substantially lower than in Chicago, the experts say.

Figures for the first four months of 1976 compiled by the Chicago Crime Commission show a 90 per cent increase in the rate of thefts compared to 1975, Stephen Schiller, commisson executive director, said Tuesday. Vehicle thefts rose 75 per cent while assaults rose 30 per cent and burglaries rose 16 per cent, he said.

He cited the figures as evidence of crime patterns which indicate a trend of suburban crime increasing at a faster rate than that of the cities.

"I DON'T KNOW if it will increase at an even faster rate by the end of the year, but if the rate continues as it is, it's pretty bad," Schiller said. "But the suburbs are still in heck of a better shape than Chicago. The rate of victimization in the suburbs is still much lower than in the city.

"But the fact of the matter is with theft offenses, you will see an increase for the next several years, and by that I mean the next two, three or four years," Schiller said.

Figures released last week by the Federal Bureau of Investigation showed a 10 per cent over-all increase in the nationwide suburban crime rate in 1975 compared to a 7 per cent rise in the rate for cities of more than 250,000.

AREA POLICE CHIEFS say the crime increase will stabilize, a theory with which Schiller agrees. But he added, "the metro area is the metro area and the impact of a criminal population on the suburbs has been overdue."

Magnus Seng, associate director of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, said Tuesday the suburban crime rise is related to "a number of factors."

"It's partly population shift, partly better highways and better mobility," he said. "The increase is going to be there."

Seng and commission chairman Gene Eidenberg said juvenile crime is the single most important factor contributing to the suburban crime pattern.

"It is the major cause," Eidenberg said.

"THE HIGHEST GROUP is the older juvenile or the young adult," Seng said. "That's where the action seems to be."

Greater tolerance of diverse lifestyles also has affected crime, Schiller said. He said those who formerly were considered "strangers" in the suburbs, such as blacks or minorities, now move more freely outside the city.

"While socially that can be a good thing, it does contribute to a person's ability to move around the county anonymously," Schiller said.

Seng said trends show that as a community grows, its crime rate starts out low, climbs and peaks and finally stabilizes.

"That doesn't mean that we're going to sit back and wait for it to stabilize," he added. "We have to keep doing things to try to prevent it. We have to improve policing, court processing and programs. But it (crime) is going to be there."

SCHILLER SAID figures which show a 50 per cent increase in rape and a 33 per cent increase in homicide in the suburbs in the first quarter of 1976 are deceptive because the number of total incidents of these crimes remains low.

But he added that assaults are "relatively high in frequency, and the increase there does alarm."

Effective crime prevention in the suburbs will require organized cooperation among suburban and area law enforcement agencies, Schiller said.

"I think one of the primary things would be to establish a countywide pattern of crime analysis," he said. Such a network could aid law enforcement agencies to identify patterns of criminals working in the city and suburbs and enhance the likelihood of anticipating crimes and apprehending offenders, he said.

"I don't think we have to spend more money on police departments," he said. "I think we're going to need a formalized means for departments collaborating."

Thompson urges more coal use, nuclear plants

by STEVE BROWN

Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson Tuesday released a comprehensive environmental position paper calling for increased use of Illinois coal and cutting government red tape concerning the construction of nuclear power plants.

Thompson also unveiled the outline of a plan to obtain additional public land through a system of installment payments and tax credits.

The position paper, the ninth released by the former U.S. Attorney, also called for taking the authority for regulating landfills away from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency and giving it to local or regional authorities.

THOMPSON SAID the position paper attempts to strike a balance between economic and environmental concerns. He did not call for a weakening of any of the state's environmental or conservation laws. However, Thompson repeatedly suggested the need for flexible regulations and fair enforcement procedures.

Thompson also called for increased state assistance to local communities on the preparation of grant applications for federal environmental funds.

The 31-page report also suggests that the Illinois Commerce Commission adopt utility rate schedules that would be "designed to promote energy conservation."

He explained that his land acquisition plan is designed to take Illinois "from 46th in the nation to somewhere near the top" in terms of land set aside for conservation purposes. He could not offer an estimate on the cost of the program or how much land he believes the state should acquire.

Thompson stopped short of calling state EPA regulations unreasonable, but he did say he has received reports that state environmental officials do not care what affect regulations would have on job loss.

"I CAN SAY one thing. If I were to be elected governor of this state, the EPA and other state agencies would care about job loss," Thompson added.

He said his proposal for reducing the bureaucratic red tape on the licensing of nuclear power plants would not reduce safeguards.

"Illinois has a commitment to nuclear power. It still has a future, but we ought to codify the permit process to help cut down on the lead time needed to build the plants," he said.

He noted that strip mining probably represents the best way to increase the use of Illinois coal.

"It is imperative that regulations be flexible enough to permit fruitful development of the coal industry and yet tough enough to ensure productive land will not be mined unless it can be reclaimed to full productive capacity," he said.

THOMPSON PROPOSED that additional personnel be assigned to the Bureau of Mines to ensure that a land reclamation program is carried on.

He said that many of his environmental proposals should help the state economic situation.

"Our ultimate environmental policy should envision a physically healthy and socially enjoyable environment that promotes rather than prevents sound economic growth," Thompson added.

Suburban Republicans skeptical

Practicality of Lincoln Coun ty bid doubted

by WANDALYN RICE

Suburban Republican members of the Cook County Board Tuesday said they doubt the practicality of an attempt to get on the Nov. 2 ballot a proposal for creating Lincoln County out of Cook County suburbs.

State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and Palatine Village Pres. Wendell Jones Monday announced they are starting a petition drive to get the proposal for the new county on the ballot. The new county, to be called Lincoln County, would include all 30 suburban townships, leaving the city of Chicago with it own county government.

Regner and Jones have said they will try to get more than 500,000 signatures on petitions calling the secession referendum by Oct. 2.

AT THE SAME time Republicans were saying they were skeptical of the proposal. Michael Smith of Elk Grove Village, Regner's Democratic opponent in the November election charged the senator with making a "sensational proposal to get press."

County Board member Carl Hansen of Mount Prospect said Tuesday he is "interested" in the proposal, but had not been informed of it in advance.

Hansen said evenif the measure were put on the ballot, it would have to pass by a majority vote in the entire county, including Chicago.

He said, "I would like to see the practical political issues in their proposal. I would feel relatively certain that (Chicago) Mayor (Richard) Daley and company would be opposed to it and that would make it a stickey wicket to adopt at best."

HANSEN ALSO SAID he is not sure it would be possible for the 30 suburban townships to form one county because they are divided by O'Hare Airport, which is part of Chicago and extends past the DuPage County line.

Jones said Tuesday the position of O'Hare would not necessarily block formation of one county out of the suburban townships. He said Chicago connected itself to the airport by annexing a strip of land down the Kennedy Expressway "and if they can do that, we can create a strip of land around the airport" to connect the north and south suburbs.

Hansen said, "I think if a proposal like this was shown to be feasible, there would be a lot of support in suburban Cook County, but I'd have to know more before I get my expectations too high."

Republican Comr. Mary McDonald said she has considered the possibility of having the suburbs secede from Cook County as a "last desperate move" if the Democrats on the county board continue to ignore the suburbs.

HOWEVER, MRS. McDONALD said, "I'm not sure suburban Cook County is ready for that yet." She said she would prefer to have a referendum to repeal the county's home rule power and "if we couldn't then get a fair shake we could go to this (the new county.)"

Republican Comr. Harold Tyrrell, chairman of the county Republican Party, said the proposal "strikes me as not being very well thought out" and added, "I don't believe in tilting at windmills."

Tyrrell also expressed irritation that Regner and Jones had not consulted the Republican county commissioners before announcing the petition drive. "I think Sen. Regner owes the courtesy of talking to his fellow Republicans before he comes out with something like this," Tyrrell said.

County Board Pres. George W. Dunne, a member of the Democratic majority on the county board, said, "As far as I'm concerned I'm for anything the people want," but added that Lincoln County "would start out with a substantial indebtedness" because they would need to pay off existing Cook County debts and purchase Cook County's forest preserve land.

DUNNE SAID, "I think what they should do is get Cook County to secede from the state and then they could form counties all over the place if they wanted."

Smith said the proposal "is nothing more than a P.R. gimmick. There is no way Regner can get his petition on the ballot."

Smith said that to be put on the ballot, the secession petition would have to have been filed 78 days before the election, not 30 days as Regner has said.

Smith said even if the proposal could get on the ballot it would be "impractical and expensive. We'd have to have a tax increase to pay for the necessary buildings for the new county."

Young asks aid from Ford for 10th District campaign

Republican congressional candidate Samuel H. Young of Glenview has given President Gerald R. Ford a personal invitation to campaign in the 10th Congressional District before the November election.

Young, who served in Congress in 1973 and 1974, traveled to Ford's Rocky Mountain vacation home in Vail, Colo. on his own initiative to talk campaign.

Richard Jacobson, a press aide to Young, said Ford indicated he could not make a definite commitment at this time because campaign schedules have not been completed.

Ford campaigned for Young in 1974 when Young lost his seat to U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th. Mikva has attracted a number of prominent Democrats into the district in his behalf, including Democratic Vice Presidential nominee Walter Mondale who appeared at a rally Saturday.

Atomic plant exceeded gas limits

by LEA TONKIN

Government records show Commonwealth Edison Company's Zion nuclear station surpassed regulatory limits for radioactive gas release twice during 1975, said Catherine Quigg, president of the Palatine-based Pollution and Environmental Problems Inc.

The June 6 and Aug. 29, 1975 incidents did not cause an increase in radiation levels outside the nearby plant, said Jerry Stanbrough, an Edison spokesman.

"On Aug. 29, the Zion nuclear station released nearly twice as much radioactive gas as the 60,000 microcuries per second allowed by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) in its licensing specifications," Mrs. Quigg said.

She said a commission's report showed the station exceeded the limit for six minutes, venting as much as 105,600 microcuries of radioactive gas per second. On June 6, 1975, the Zion plant exceeded the limit by 15 per cent. A microcurie is a millionth of a curie, a measurement of radioactivity.

Mrs. Quigg also cited commission records indicating the Zion nuclear station released 4,100 curies of radioactive gas and 40 curies of liquid effluent — principally tritium — during the first six months of 1975.

GRASSY NESTING cover for wildlife is more abundant in Illinois thanks to a cooperative program of the state departments of conservation and transportation. Transportation officials agreed to mow only to the ditch line on rural two-lane highways, leaving the backslope of the roadside areas undisturbed.

Wildlife biologists believe the program could result in more than 8,500 new pheasant nests alone, or more than 100,000 birds.

"The benefit of the program has been twofold," said Tony Dean, conservation department director. "The department of transportation saves gasoline, equipment costs and manhours, and nesting sites are provided for most types of ground nesting wildlife."

THE BALD EAGLE, the U.S. national symbol, has been proposed for listing as endangered in 43 states and threatened in five others, said Keith Schreiner of the U.S. Interior Department's Fish and Wildlife Service.

Young, who served in Congress in 1973 and 1974, traveled to Ford's Rocky Mountain vacation home in Vail, Colo. on his own initiative to talk campaign.

Richard Jacobson, a press aide to Young, said Ford indicated he could not make a definite commitment at this time because campaign schedules have not been completed.

Ford campaigned for Young in 1974 when Young lost his seat to U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th. Mikva has attracted a number of prominent Democrats into the district in his behalf, including Democratic Vice Presidential nominee Walter Mondale who appeared at a rally Saturday.

Atomic plant exceeded gas limits

by LEA TONKIN

Government records show Commonwealth Edison Company's Zion nuclear station surpassed regulatory limits for radioactive gas release twice during 1975, said Catherine Quigg, president of the Palatine-based Pollution and Environmental Problems Inc.

The June 6 and Aug. 29, 1975 incidents did not cause an increase in radiation levels outside the nearby plant, said Jerry Stanbrough, an Edison spokesman.

"On Aug. 29, the Zion nuclear station released nearly twice as much radioactive gas as the 60,000 microcuries per second allowed by the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) in its licensing specifications," Mrs. Quigg said.

She said a commission's report showed the station exceeded the limit for six minutes, venting as much as 105,600 microcuries of radioactive gas per second. On June 6, 1975, the Zion plant exceeded the limit by 15 per cent. A microcurie is a millionth of a curie, a measurement of radioactivity.

Mrs. Quigg also cited commission records indicating the Zion nuclear station released 4,100 curies of radioactive gas and 40 curies of liquid effluent — principally tritium — during the first six months of 1975.

GRASSY NESTING cover for wildlife is more abundant in Illinois thanks to a cooperative program of the state departments of conservation and transportation. Transportation officials agreed to mow only to the ditch line on rural two-lane highways, leaving the backslope of the roadside areas undisturbed.

Wildlife biologists believe the program could result in more than 8,500 new pheasant nests alone, or more than 100,000 birds.

"The benefit of the program has been twofold," said Tony Dean, conservation department director. "The department of transportation saves gasoline, equipment costs and manhours, and nesting sites are provided for most types of ground nesting wildlife."

THE BALD EAGLE, the U.S. national symbol, has been proposed for listing as endangered in 43 states and threatened in five others, said Keith Schreiner of the U.S. Interior Department's Fish and Wildlife Service.

"It is ironic and particularly disturbing to me that at the time of the Bicentennial, the living embodiment of America is in such a predicament," Schreiner said. The species is protected under the Bald Eagle Protection Act of 1940, but only the southern subspecies is listed as endangered.

THE ILLINOIS Pollution Control Board has scheduled a hearing in Chicago today on a proposed amendment to Rule 602 (d) (3) of the Water Quality Standards. The regulation deals with combined sewer overflows. The session will start at 1:30 p.m. at 309 W. Washington St. in the third floor conference room.

The way we see it

Education 'only' session needed

Several Illinois political leaders are clamoring for Gov. Daniel Walker to call a special session of the Illinois General Assembly to deal with education funding issues.

Walker and other leaders would be well advised to proceed with caution in this area. Before Walker moves to call such a session, there ought to be an agreement between the leadership of the General Assembly from both parties on exactly what will happen.

Without such an agreement, the act of turning the lawmakers loose with a general election in sight might result in a nightmare.

The legislature should return to Springfield before the election with only one purpose in mind — to approve the accelerated tax collection program.

That move will give the state another $95 million during the present fiscal year, allow a number of changes to the school aid formula to become law and clarify the state education funding situation in general.

Some lawmakers will argue that there are many other matters which deserve immediate attention, but to open a special session to other issues or to call separate special sessions for other matters to run concurrently with the education session would be a mistake.

Even the best intentioned lawmakers would be tempted to push for projects that could be a benefit to both the community and themselves. Such a situation could make the normal chaos of a campaign season unbearable.

The people of the state would be ill-served at this time if their elected representatives were given another chance to dump an unlimited number of bills into the hopper just two months before the election.

A special session for education is in the best interest of the state but other matters should be left alone until after the election.

Promise becomes reality on driver test site

Sec. of State Michael Howlett announced Tuesday that a lease has been signed for a driver's license testing center for the Northwest suburbs.

We're delighted. And regardless of the speculation on why it took so long — the facility was funded in 1972 by the Illinois General Assembly — you can't deny that Sec. of State Michael Howlett deserves recognition for following through with the promise that a licensing center would be located here.

What the new facility at 1231 E. Golf Rd., (near the Woodfield Shopping Center) will do is provide close-to-home driver's license examining for residents of this area. The nearest such licensing station now is in Libertyville.

In announcing the agreement Tuesday, Howlett said "It would be most economical and expeditious to lease a facility that can be put into operation quickly." On the other hand, Schlickman mused, maybe Howlett now believes the location, — is too congested for on-the-street license testing. National Council of Jewish Women 'wholeheartedly' supports E.R.A

The National Council of Jewish Women wishes to take this opportunity to announce once again to the opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment that we wholeheartedly support the ratification of the E.R.A. and do not wish to be included in the literature put out by the Stop ERA movement. We have written several letters to this group in the past few years, but these opponents continue to use our name deceptively in their publications. In California it has been necessary to take court action against stop ERA for this practice. We hope it will not be necessary in Illinois.

NCJW has supported the ratification of ERA in every state in which we have local sections. We have testified, written letters, spoken on behalf of the ERA, and done as individuals and in the name of council whatever we could to work for ratification.

In Illinois we are charter members of the ERA Illinois organization and are on its state board of directors. I have personally testified in support of ERA in Springfield at the House hearings. In fact, the spokeswoman for stop ERA was there and heard my testimony. We strongly object to the false statement that the National Council of Jewish Women is to be included in the opponents of ERA. We ask for public acknowledgement that NCJW supports the ratification of ERA in Illinois and in every state that has yet to ratify. To misuse our name is deceitful and dishonorable. We seek the passage of ERA as quickly as possible so that women everywhere in our country will be accorded equal rights under the law.

New mayor gets first challenge

Now that all the hoop-la, awards and plaudits are over do you think the new temporary mayor will somehow do something about the problem that is on the minds of a great many of the residents of Des Plaines. The vandalism, robberies-breakins-stolen bicycles and indecent exposure that have been increasing weekly. This never seems to be among the subjects discussed on the weekly news briefings. Are the politicos saying that increasing crime is something that we will have to live with and there is nothing that we can or want to do about it.

Doesn't this salary for part-time temporary worker seem just a little bit out of line. One man spends 19½ years learning all the ins and outs, tricks, angles and short cuts and finally works the take up to $25,000 plus fringes and along comes a man who knows nothing whatsoever about the job and he gets the same deal for only 20 hours and one or two evenings a month. Economist commentary

The Western world's right face

During the great depression of the 1930s, active political opinion in most rich countries moved several degrees to the left. This did not mean that many (or indeed any) great nations voluntarily voted into office any very left-wing governments in the next 40 years. But it did mean that it became easier to lead almost every individual political party from its own left of center.

The 40 years during which the active pressure was thus from the left created many muddles: a tendency in domestic affairs to try to resolve every problem by throwing money at it, a vague pacifism in international affairs so that the peace pledge union and its successors hampered prompt resistance to Nazi and, later, Soviet domination of too much of the world.

Those 40 years of forward march by the left also brought some great human and technical advances, which are in danger of being too much disparaged now: a Keynesianism that has helped to multiply real gross world product five times over since the 1930s in history's greatest economic expansion, the building of decent and compassionate welfare states, the end of colonialism.

During the small world recession of the 1970s, it now seems probable that active political opinion in most rich countries has moved some degrees to the right.

This does not mean that any great nation is likely voluntarily to elect any very right wing government during the next 40 years. But it does mean, first, that it has suddenly become easier to lead almost every political party from its own right of center.

It means, second, that there are some dangers of muddles in the new mood of ditching the left: don't please, throw the economic growth, or compassionate welfare states, or even all the dotty idealism away.

It should mean, third, that there is now an opportunity to build some great advances, going forward by the right.

This year's presidential election for the leadership of the free world will be between Gerald Ford, whose gut feelings are well to the right of center, and Jimmy Carter who has deftly taken a political stance on both sides of him.

The past year's political oddity — the electoral popularity of advocating cuts in government spending during a period of high unemployment — has had two often contradictory electoral effects. First, it has temporarily increased swings against the government of the day, whether it be right, left or center. Second it has made it seem better while in opposition — and slightly less bad while in power — to have more conservatives leaders both of conservative and social democrat parties.

How worried should liberals be about this trend for everybody to go right?

Many liberals are worried about the collapse of the more left-wing leaders of right-wing parties: the Heaths and the liberal Republicans are not the masters now. Probably, those worries are misplaced. The rightward surge among world conservative parties is unlikely to have major adverse effects on the performance of conservative governments because the surge has more gut feeling than settled dogma about it. In office, most of these new conservative governments should be sensibly pragmatic, as indeed President Ford's has been.

The biggest danger from the present anti-Establishment swing — the present urge to turn out any existing government in favor of the most right-wing available version of the opposition (even if it's a Communist one) — probably lies in countries which have had right-wing governments for a long time, often with successful economic records, and where there is now not an alternative government in being that could work.

This is the danger of the new pattern of prejudice. The opportunities are greater, especially for those right-wingers who are supposed to head left-leaning governments. The most important of these should be Germany's Helmut Schmidt and the President Carter who is likely to be in the White House next year.

Here are some guidelines for the new conservatives. The public's real and righteous gut revolt is against the multiplication of the bureaucracy without any equivalent increase in its productivity. Set a target that the government's share in total employment shall decrease annually, and return every possible issue to market decision away from bureaucratic intervention.

More than 30 years ago the economist Colin Clark forecast that inflation would be inevitable in any country where the government took more than 25 per cent of GNP, and he has proved right.

Cuts in government expenditures are phony when they are mere deferments of necessary capital expenditure or of welfare state rises, so concentrate on "recompetitioning" and reprivatization all through the public sector. Assess the costs and intended output of every individual and group in the public service, and invite bids on performance contracts by competitors who say they could produce more at lower cost.

It is important that the coming cuts in government expenditure should be matched by large tax cuts, because high taxes are an independent source of high inflation now.

In industrial policy, trustbust both industrial and trade union monopolies, instead of pampering both by corporate-state policies and industrial reorganization corporations (before slapping on distorting wage and price controls).

In relations with foreign countries, the new conservatives ought to worry less about annoying what should be those countries' decreasingly important governments, and start to worry more about those countries' ordinary people.

In trying to enrich the poor two thirds of the world's population, which will become increasingly important, the emphasis should be much more on performance contracts to produce efficiently the supplies or systems needed to meet minimum subsistence needs (food, shelter, full employment at village level) instead of salving consciences by government-to-government aid (which tends at best to finance investments the market would finance more logically, and at worst to increase the power of governments in countries where that power needs to be decreased.

In dealings with other great and nuclear powers, remember that the Russian government is not going to blow up the world out of pique because the new conservatives put more emphasis on individual freedom, including that of later Solzhenitsyns.

It is possible that the wing to the new right is a temporary aberration, as the attachment of some of the young to the new left in the 1960s plainly was. If it isn't, it could be very important. The records of most of the postwar years — records of constant rises in GNP and government expenditure, and of constant nibbling at personal liberty — suggest that it has mattered little whether individual countries voted for tweedletory or tweedle-trendy.

But it has mattered a great deal that Tory prime ministers in office have felt that they must try to appeal to the left of their own centers, and that most lefter-wing politicians have felt in opposition that they have the best chance of becoming party leader if they look to the left of their centers too.

The message of Kansas City is that, both in and out of government, that pendulum may be swinging. And the definition of the politically attractive may be swinging too.

The way we see it

Education 'only' session needed

Several Illinois political leaders are clamoring for Gov. Daniel Walker to call a special session of the Illinois General Assembly to deal with education funding issues.

Walker and other leaders would be well advised to proceed with caution in this area. Before Walker moves to call such a session, there ought to be an agreement between the leadership of the General Assembly from both parties on exactly what will happen.

Without such an agreement, the act of turning the lawmakers loose with a general election in sight might result in a nightmare.

The legislature should return to Springfield before the election with only one purpose in mind — to approve the accelerated tax collection program.

That move will give the state another $95 million during the present fiscal year, allow a number of changes to the school aid formula to become law and clarify the state education funding situation in general.

Some lawmakers will argue that there are many other matters which deserve immediate attention, but to open a special session to other issues or to call separate special sessions for other matters to run concurrently with the education session would be a mistake.

Even the best intentioned lawmakers would be tempted to push for projects that could be a benefit to both the community and themselves. Such a situation could make the normal chaos of a campaign season unbearable.

The people of the state would be ill-served at this time if their elected representatives were given another chance to dump an unlimited number of bills into the hopper just two months before the election.

A special session for education is in the best interest of the state but other matters should be left alone until after the election.

Promise becomes reality on driver test site

Sec. of State Michael Howlett announced Tuesday that a lease has been signed for a driver's license testing center for the Northwest suburbs.

We're delighted. And regardless of the speculation on why it took so long — the facility was funded in 1972 by the Illinois General Assembly — you can't deny that Sec. of State Michael Howlett deserves recognition for following through with the promise that a licensing center would be located here.

What the new facility at 1231 E. Golf Rd., (near the Woodfield Shopping Center) will do is provide close-to-home driver's license examining for residents of this area. The nearest such licensing station now is in Libertyville.

In announcing the agreement Tuesday, Howlett said "It would be most economical and expeditious to lease a facility that can be put into operation quickly." We agree, but at the same time we have to wonder why it took several years. Again, we can speculate as did State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, last week.

Schlickman charged Howlett — the Democratic candidate for governor — with procrastinating until the eve of the Nov. 2 election before Howlett cuts the ribbon. On the other hand, Schlickman mused, maybe Howlett now believes the location, — is too congested for on-the-street license testing. With the agreement now signed and the facility scheduled to open in the fall, the latter speculation was not accurate.

Another way to view the situation is that Schlickman was doing some campaigning himself.

Tips to cut car insurance costs

by Robert S. Rosefsky

Whatever happened to no-fault auto insurance, that supposed cure-all for the problems facing motorists who have to buy car insurance and process the claims arising from the insurance?

It's a long way from being the panacea its supporters said it would be. Indeed, in some instances it may have created new abuses to replace some of the old ones it was to have eliminated.

The "threshold" concept, for example, has been reported as being an open invitation to cheat. Under some no-fault laws a victim cannot sue for "pain and suffering" unless his medical expenses have exceeded a legally set threshold, such as $500.

Collusion between doctor and victim is then very tempting: To boost the medical expenses past the threshold level, allowing the doctor to pocket extra fees, and allowing the victim to pursue a claim for pain and suffering.

MEANWHILE, BACK in the garage, beefed-up repair bills put extra money in the pockets of unscrupulous operators, while motorists who cooperate with such tactics finagle their own kickbacks.

All of this on top of the ever-increasing costs of legitimate repairs and medical expenses have put a tight squeeze on auto insurers. In order to remain solvent and able to offer insurance to the public, the insurers have been seeking and winnng rate increases across the nation.

If you groaned more than usual the last time you got a bill for your car insurance premium, pay heed to some steps that could cut those costs without increasing your risks unacceptably.

- Shop around for your coverage. Rates can vary considerably from one company to another in a given area. Compare exactly what coverage you are getting for how many premium dollars.
- Determine what discounts you may be eligible for. Commonly, discounts are given for having more than one car on a policy, compact cars, driver education courses taken by younger drivers, cars that meet bumper standards and safe driving records. Make sure you're getting all that you are entitled to.
- Young drivers can boost premium costs considerably. If you have more than one car in your family, and the young drivers only use one of them, you shouldn't have to be paying the higher rates on the car they don't use. Check with your company to determine how you might get relief in this respect.
- Consider increasing the amount of your deductible, especially in the collision and comprehensive coverage. A higher deductible means a lower premium. The lower premium cost might well be worth accepting a slightly higher risk.
- On older cars, especially those whose current market value may be in the $1,000 to $1,200 range, consider dropping your collison coverage. The cost is quite high in relation to the value of the car, and you might be far better off self-insuring instead of shelling out premiums.
- Check with your agent on all aspects of your coverage periodically. He can help, but he may need some prodding.

THE PONTIAC Catalina two-door coupe is among the automaker's lineup of redesigned full-size cars for 1977.

Pontiac debuts new generation of cars

The Pontiac 1977 model autos, paced by a new generation of full-size cars, were recently introduced by Alex Mair, general manager of Pontiac Motor Division and a General Motors vice president.

Smaller on the outside and roomier on the inside, the Pontiac full-size cars offer improved fuel economy. The Catalina, Bonneville, Bonneville Brougham, Catalina Safari and Grand Safari are included in this group.

On the Catalina model, for example, the 1977 exterior dimensions compare to 1976 dimensions: Length, 213.8 inches compared to 225 inches, width, 75.4 inches compared to 78.9 inches; wheelbase, 115.9 inches compared to 123.4 inches; and weight, 3,685 pounds compared to 4,423 pounds.

Among other Pontiac features for the 1977 model year:

- A new four-cylinder engine will be available on the Astre and Sunbird models as well as the Ventura coupe and sedan.
- New front styling, highlighted by dual rectangular headlamps, will be featured on the four models of the Pontiac Firebird.
- A modified front grille design and Grand Prix-style instument panel are featured on new compact Ventura models.
- The Grand Prix will be shown in three models, featuring new options such as Citizens' Band radio and a digital AM-FM stereo information center and clock.
- Available in three models, the Astre subcompact has a new grille, front-end and interior trim and several new options.
- A new front-end and grille are featured on the Sunbird model.
- The mid-sized LeMans series has a modified front end, revised engine lineup and new options for 1977.

U.S. bill clamps lid on mail hikes, cuts

Senate and House negotiators approved a compromise bill Tuesday which would freeze postal rate increases and service cutbacks. It would also provide the financially-ailing UPS. Postal Service with $1 billion. The legislation, which has the approval of the administration, must still clear the Senate and House before being sent to the White House. The moratorium on rate increases and service cutbacks would extend until March 15, 1977.

Soviets snap up American grain

The Soviet Union has ordered another quarter of a million metric tons of America's 1976 wheat crop in a deal valued at $34.6 million, federal officials announced Tuesday. The purchase, to be shipped after Oct. 1, brings Russia's U.S. grain orders for the coming 1976-77 season to 4.624 million tons, or about three quarters of the 6 million ton minimum they are required to buy yearly under the five-year grain purchase agreement signed last year. Agriculture department spokesmen said the new sale was made by a private U.S. trading firm, not identified.

UAW snubs Ford pay hike offer

The Ford Motor Co. Tuesday offered its 170,000 workers a 3 per cent pay increase in a new contract. The United Auto Workers promptly rejected it. "It's the most regressive offer I have been given in all my years of bargaining," an angry UAW President Leonard Woodcock said after leaving the negotiating suite at Ford headquarters in Dearborn, Mich.

Funds OKd for clean auto study

The House voted Tuesday to spend hundreds of millions of federal dollars for gas-efficient and clean autos for the future. The House gave final congressional passage to a bill authorizing $160 million through Fiscal Year 1981 for research and demonstration of electric and "hybrid" cars using new fuels or using fuels in a new way. The Senate had already approved the same bill, and House action sends it to the White House. The House also approved a House-Senate conference version of a bill to authorize $100 million through Fiscal 1978 for advanced ways to make cars go, in a fuel-stingy, nonpolluting and safe way.

Printing firm completes move

Mobile Print Co. announced the completion of a recent move from a Palatine facility to larger quarters at 605 E. Kensington Rd., Arlington Heights. Robert L. Peters, president, said the new plant includes an art and advertising department as well as enlarged camera and binding areas. Additional offset and letterpress equipment has been installed in the new location.

'Grocers profiteer on meat'

Farmers and consumers should pressure grocers to cut retail meat prices and reduce the spread between what the farmer gets and what the consumer pays for beef and pork, agriculture department officials Don Paarlberg said. A supermarket spokesman responded that the government's figures on farm-to-retail spreads were misleading and that retailers were not profiteering from the lower livestock prices. Paarlberg said that while retail prices declined in the past year, they were far short of the steep drops in livestock prices that have resulted in losses for cattlemen and hog producers.

FTC crackdown on ads urged

Presidential consumer adviser Virginia Knauer says the Federal Trade Commission needs to come up with regulations to crack down on misleading advertising for low-cost product samples. She said thousands of Americans are being victimized by the ads, which either fail to deliver the goods or provide such small amounts that they are worthless.

Senate to consider antitrust bill

The Senate voted 63-27 Tuesday to prevent a threatened filibuster by Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., against a bill which would significantly strengthen the government's antitrust enforcement powers. The vote to invoke cloture opened the way for final consideration of a compromise verson of the measure which passed the Senate June 10 following a bitterly fought filibuster waged by Allen.

Stocks gain again; Dow up 4.82

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices rose Tuesdsay for the third consecutive session on the New York Stock Exchange in a tranquil session.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up 4.99 points Monday, gained another 4.82 points to 973.74. It had been ahead more than seven.

Advances topped declines, 997 to 393, among the 1,844 issues crossing the tape, with volume at 15,480,000 shares, up from the 11,140,000 traded Monday, the second slowest Big Board session of the year. Tuesday's volume was light relative to the year's average.

THOMAS WILSON of Standard & Poor's said despite the slowdown in the economy, he's looking for "an orderly continuation of the advance." He said some investors were encouraged by Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, who said Monday "the basic underlying recovery is solidly in place with no underlying deteriorations" despite its recent pause.

The Commerce Dept. verified the "pause" by reporting that July factory orders fell 0.5 per cent. Revised figures showed new durable goods orders fell 2.1 per cent, instead of 0.5 per cent originally reported. The revised figure was the largest decline since 4.8 per cent in March 1975.

The Agriculture Dept. reported farm prices dropped 4 per cent in the month ended Aug. 15. Also, U.S. Steel and most other steel producers have rescinded price increases recently announced for steel products.

American Telephone & Telegraph led the active list, up 1/8 to 59¼ on 200,700 shares. Sony Corp. followed, up 1/8 to 9 on 163,500 shares. Long Island Lighting was third, up 1/8 to 17-3/8.

Tips to cut car insurance costs

by Robert S. Rosefsky

Whatever happened to no-fault auto insurance, that supposed cure-all for the problems facing motorists who have to buy car insurance and process the claims arising from the insurance?

It's a long way from being the panacea its supporters said it would be. Indeed, in some instances it may have created new abuses to replace some of the old ones it was to have eliminated.

The "threshold" concept, for example, has been reported as being an open invitation to cheat. Under some no-fault laws a victim cannot sue for "pain and suffering" unless his medical expenses have exceeded a legally set threshold, such as $500.

Collusion between doctor and victim is then very tempting: To boost the medical expenses past the threshold level, allowing the doctor to pocket extra fees, and allowing the victim to pursue a claim for pain and suffering.

MEANWHILE, BACK in the garage, beefed-up repair bills put extra money in the pockets of unscrupulous operators, while motorists who cooperate with such tactics finagle their own kickbacks.

All of this on top of the ever-increasing costs of legitimate repairs and medical expenses have put a tight squeeze on auto insurers. In order to remain solvent and able to offer insurance to the public, the insurers have been seeking and winnng rate increases across the nation.

If you groaned more than usual the last time you got a bill for your car insurance premium, pay heed to some steps that could cut those costs without increasing your risks unacceptably.

- Shop around for your coverage. Rates can vary considerably from one company to another in a given area. Compare exactly what coverage you are getting for how many premium dollars.
- Determine what discounts you may be eligible for. Commonly, discounts are given for having more than one car on a policy, compact cars, driver education courses taken by younger drivers, cars that meet bumper standards and safe driving records. Make sure you're getting all that you are entitled to.
- Young drivers can boost premium costs considerably. If you have more than one car in your family, and the young drivers only use one of them, you shouldn't have to be paying the higher rates on the car they don't use. Check with your company to determine how you might get relief in this respect.
- Consider increasing the amount of your deductible, especially in the collision and comprehensive coverage. A higher deductible means a lower premium. The lower premium cost might well be worth accepting a slightly higher risk.
- On older cars, especially those whose current market value may be in the $1,000 to $1,200 range, consider dropping your collison coverage. The cost is quite high in relation to the value of the car, and you might be far better off self-insuring instead of shelling out premiums.
- Check with your agent on all aspects of your coverage periodically. He can help, but he may need some prodding.

THE PONTIAC Catalina two-door coupe is among the automaker's lineup of redesigned full-size cars for 1977.

Pontiac debuts new generation of cars

The Pontiac 1977 model autos, paced by a new generation of full-size cars, were recently introduced by Alex Mair, general manager of Pontiac Motor Division and a General Motors vice president.

Smaller on the outside and roomier on the inside, the Pontiac full-size cars offer improved fuel economy. The Catalina, Bonneville, Bonneville Brougham, Catalina Safari and Grand Safari are included in this group.

On the Catalina model, for example, the 1977 exterior dimensions compare to 1976 dimensions: Length, 213.8 inches compared to 225 inches, width, 75.4 inches compared to 78.9 inches; wheelbase, 115.9 inches compared to 123.4 inches; and weight, 3,685 pounds compared to 4,423 pounds.

Among other Pontiac features for the 1977 model year:

- A new four-cylinder engine will be available on the Astre and Sunbird models as well as the Ventura coupe and sedan.
- New front styling, highlighted by dual rectangular headlamps, will be featured on the four models of the Pontiac Firebird.
- A modified front grille design and Grand Prix-style instument panel are featured on new compact Ventura models.
- The Grand Prix will be shown in three models, featuring new options such as Citizens' Band radio and a digital AM-FM stereo information center and clock.
- Available in three models, the Astre subcompact has a new grille, front-end and interior trim and several new options.
- A new front-end and grille are featured on the Sunbird model.
- The mid-sized LeMans series has a modified front end, revised engine lineup and new options for 1977.

U.S. bill clamps lid on mail hikes, cuts

Senate and House negotiators approved a compromise bill Tuesday which would freeze postal rate increases and service cutbacks. It would also provide the financially-ailing UPS. Postal Service with $1 billion. The legislation, which has the approval of the administration, must still clear the Senate and House before being sent to the White House. The moratorium on rate increases and service cutbacks would extend until March 15, 1977.

Soviets snap up American grain

The Soviet Union has ordered another quarter of a million metric tons of America's 1976 wheat crop in a deal valued at $34.6 million, federal officials announced Tuesday. The purchase, to be shipped after Oct. 1, brings Russia's U.S. grain orders for the coming 1976-77 season to 4.624 million tons, or about three quarters of the 6 million ton minimum they are required to buy yearly under the five-year grain purchase agreement signed last year. Agriculture department spokesmen said the new sale was made by a private U.S. trading firm, not identified.

UAW snubs Ford pay hike offer

The Ford Motor Co. Tuesday offered its 170,000 workers a 3 per cent pay increase in a new contract. The United Auto Workers promptly rejected it. "It's the most regressive offer I have been given in all my years of bargaining," an angry UAW President Leonard Woodcock said after leaving the negotiating suite at Ford headquarters in Dearborn, Mich.

Funds OKd for clean auto study

The House voted Tuesday to spend hundreds of millions of federal dollars for gas-efficient and clean autos for the future. The House gave final congressional passage to a bill authorizing $160 million through Fiscal Year 1981 for research and demonstration of electric and "hybrid" cars using new fuels or using fuels in a new way. The Senate had already approved the same bill, and House action sends it to the White House. The House also approved a House-Senate conference version of a bill to authorize $100 million through Fiscal 1978 for advanced ways to make cars go, in a fuel-stingy, nonpolluting and safe way.

Printing firm completes move

Mobile Print Co. announced the completion of a recent move from a Palatine facility to larger quarters at 605 E. Kensington Rd., Arlington Heights. Robert L. Peters, president, said the new plant includes an art and advertising department as well as enlarged camera and binding areas. Additional offset and letterpress equipment has been installed in the new location.

'Grocers profiteer on meat'

Farmers and consumers should pressure grocers to cut retail meat prices and reduce the spread between what the farmer gets and what the consumer pays for beef and pork, agriculture department officials Don Paarlberg said. A supermarket spokesman responded that the government's figures on farm-to-retail spreads were misleading and that retailers were not profiteering from the lower livestock prices. Paarlberg said that while retail prices declined in the past year, they were far short of the steep drops in livestock prices that have resulted in losses for cattlemen and hog producers.

FTC crackdown on ads urged

Presidential consumer adviser Virginia Knauer says the Federal Trade Commission needs to come up with regulations to crack down on misleading advertising for low-cost product samples. She said thousands of Americans are being victimized by the ads, which either fail to deliver the goods or provide such small amounts that they are worthless.

Senate to consider antitrust bill

The Senate voted 63-27 Tuesday to prevent a threatened filibuster by Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., against a bill which would significantly strengthen the government's antitrust enforcement powers. The vote to invoke cloture opened the way for final consideration of a compromise verson of the measure which passed the Senate June 10 following a bitterly fought filibuster waged by Allen.

Stocks gain again; Dow up 4.82

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices rose Tuesdsay for the third consecutive session on the New York Stock Exchange in a tranquil session.

The Dow Jones industrial average, up 4.99 points Monday, gained another 4.82 points to 973.74. It had been ahead more than seven.

Advances topped declines, 997 to 393, among the 1,844 issues crossing the tape, with volume at 15,480,000 shares, up from the 11,140,000 traded Monday, the second slowest Big Board session of the year. Tuesday's volume was light relative to the year's average.

THOMAS WILSON of Standard & Poor's said despite the slowdown in the economy, he's looking for "an orderly continuation of the advance." He said some investors were encouraged by Alan Greenspan, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, who said Monday "the basic underlying recovery is solidly in place with no underlying deteriorations" despite its recent pause.

The Commerce Dept. verified the "pause" by reporting that July factory orders fell 0.5 per cent. Revised figures showed new durable goods orders fell 2.1 per cent, instead of 0.5 per cent originally reported. The revised figure was the largest decline since 4.8 per cent in March 1975.

The Agriculture Dept. reported farm prices dropped 4 per cent in the month ended Aug. 15. Also, U.S. Steel and most other steel producers have rescinded price increases recently announced for steel products.

American Telephone & Telegraph led the active list, up 1/8 to 59¼ on 200,700 shares. Sony Corp. followed, up 1/8 to 9 on 163,500 shares. Long Island Lighting was third, up 1/8 to 17-3/8.

Etiquette expert talks about changing manners

by JEANNE LESEM

A trip to Alaska changed Elizabeth Post's mind about the propriety of accepting doggy bags in restaurants when faced with a meal too large to eat.

"We were served the most enormous portions seen any place," said Mrs. Post, granddaughter-in-law of etiquette authority Emily Post. "Even the men in our party couldn't begin to finish them. The waiter asked if we wanted to take the (leftover) steak with us for a picnic tomorrow."

The answer was a unanimous "yes."

In an interview, Mrs. Post talked about changing manners and mores in the 1970s.

She deplored the service of large portions in restaurants. "It's just terrible when they bring huge portions uninvited. Men can eat them, but women can't."

WHILE SHE NOW approves of carrying away leftovers from dinner in some restaurants, especially considering the high cost of food, "You shouldn't take gooey things," she said, "but it's only sensible to take steak or a chicken leg or an untouched chop or half a loaf of bread. Not at a really fancy restaurant, of course. But a really good restaurant is not apt to serve too much."

At the same time, Mrs. Post disapproves of ordering one portion for two persons in most restaurants.

"It isn't fair to the restaurant. You are paying for one meal, but using two places."

Since 1944 Mrs. Post has carried on her grandmother-in-law's tradition of writing about etiquette. She has a syndicated column and has updated "Emily Post's Etiquette," a book first published in 1922. The latest edition was published last year (Funk and Wagnall's $11.95). It reflects the present Mrs. Post's new attitude about doggy bags and other changing social customs, including showers and birth announcements for unwed mothers. But some things never change, she said.

"TABLE MANNERS exist for a very good reason. They were devised to make eating more attractive. Chewing with your mouth open is not, for instance.

"Weddings are largely unchanged. The majority of girls still wear white, still have bridesmaids and ushers, still exchange vows and promises, still have receptions with toasts to the bride and bridegroom and still have flowers."

She said many readers ask how to handle introductions of their daughter's housemate of the opposite sex.

"I would say, 'This is my daughter's friend, John.' I don't think it is necessary to say more.

"I have had lots of interesting conversations about this. One friend in Vermont (where Mrs. Post and her husband, William, live) introduces her daughter's friend as 'my son-out-law.' I also know people who say co-habitant or co-vivant."

SHE ALSO GETS questions from people like the couple who took their infant daughter along when a neighbor asked them to drop in for cocktails and supper, but didn't say it was going to be a party. They were appalled to discover that a dozen or more guests were expected. The wife said they felt so out of place they apologized and went home.

People also ask what to do about bringing an uninvited guest.

"It is almost always possible to ask if you can bring someone," Mrs. Post said. "It is perfectly possible for a hostess to say, 'no'."

But she also should say why, Mrs. Post said, and add, "I'm terribly sorry, I'll get you another time."

Also ticklish is the question of manners when the phone rings while a visitor is present. You answer, said Mrs. Post, but let the caller know you have a visitor and will call back later if a long conversation is expected.

"It's so rude not to (postpone the call). You have a captive audience who doesn't want to listen, but who cannot help doing so."

Doctor's busy life was no surprise to Mary Lou Alfini

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Mary Lou Alfini is one doctor's wife who understands the demands of the medical profession. She learned at her mother's knee.

Daughter of a physician and wife of Dr. Robert Alfini, Arlington Heights orthopedic surgeon, Mrs. Alfini appreciates and is tolerant of her husband's professional commitment, long hours and on-call duty.

"I can't always tell the children 'we'll do it when Daddy comes home.' And socially I do sometimes have to stand in for him, but I don't resent it. I love being a doctor's wife! I knew what I was getting into," she admitted, smiling.

Though primarily a physician's wife, a mother and a homemaker in her own eyes, Mary Lou definitely is not homebound.

THE SMARTLY attired, petite size, model-lovely brunette brings charm and beauty to any setting. But she becomes slightly impatient with those who dote on her good looks, for she relies on more solid values.

Mary Lou's happiest managing her home and volunteering time and expertise to the community. And that expertise includes that of dancer, teacher, choreographer, runway model and hospital volunteer. She also has public relations know-how and organizational talent she can contribute now that children Mary Jo, 19, Jim, 14, and Jeffrey, 11, are older.

"But I am not Mrs. Do-Gooder," declares Mrs. Alfini. "I do what I enjoy, It keeps me a happy person and makes others happy."

"Besides," she adds, "a successful homemaker gets out into the community. Her husband and children are outside the home in school and at work, and she should get out, too."

MARY LOU IS accustomed to a busy life with varied interests. She grew up in River Forest where she attended Rosary College, majoring in math and minoring in drama. As a teenager, she won a beauty contest and for the prize received modeling lessons. She eventually modeled at the old Fair Store, later for other stores, companies and conventions.

She retains an active interest in fashion, sometimes modeling at local charity shows sponsored by such organizations as Arlington Heights Woman's Club, Northwest Community Hospital, Republican Women's Club and Our Lady of the Wayside Church.

She also models and sells seven lines of clothing for a New York company when that firm's representatives come to Chicago. "Buyers attend conventions where I model clothes and they place their orders," she explained.

For her own wardrobe Mary Lou chooses traditional styles that span the seasons. She incorporates new ideas as they suit her mode of dressing, selecting what complements her personal style, she said. She especially loves jewelry, genuine gold being her standby.

"IF YOU BUY something that looks good, it can be updated and always will look good" is her fashion credo.

Mary Lou also enjoys dance. Her primary interest in that field is teaching and doing choreography for amateur variety shows. Every other year, for example she choreographs, teaches and performs in a show put on by Rolling Green Country Club. Her repertoire includes tap, modern dance and ballet.

"Mary Jo and I do our ballet exercises at a bar in the basement," she said.

Though she likes fashion and dance, Mary Lou's major interest is linked to her husband's profession. She spends the most time — and that can be several days a week during winter months — at Northwest Community Hospital. She has sat on the hospital auxiliary board about seven years, and she now chairs the Community Relations Hospital Foundation. Public relations is her main job.

"THE AUXILIARY is working to educate the community in what's going on at the hospital to benefit both sick and well people," she said. "We want the public to know what the hospital can do for them, so when we approach them for contributions, they will know why."

Replacing outdated equipment is one area that requires community help.

"Our primary job is to raise money for hospital equipment. No way can this come from patient fees. The only way to get it is from community donors," said Mary Lou.

Extending services into the community, the foundation has set up such programs as Tele-Care for older citizens, a pediatric orientation program for children to be hospitalized, a baby sitting program and a speaker's bureau among others.

MARY LOU ALSO acts as go-between for hospital activities and other doctor's wives, a role she particularly enjoys.

Doing what she enjoys is Mary Lou Alfini's lifestyle and she's happy and satisfied with her choice. Sharing her time and talents gives her the variety she needs, and home and family more than fulfill the rest of her life.

Of her husband she says, "Medicine is an admirable profession, but even if I weren't married to a doctor, I'd love and respect Bob as a person. He's a real, genuine, good human being. He has no temper, no temperament."

Then as a parent, she adds: "I've chosen my lifestyle and I'm happy with it. But I want our daughter to be prepared to take advantage of opportunities that are open to her in this new society."

BALLET HELPS Mary Lou Alfini, busy doctor's wife, keep trim. Here she demonstrates a position for the photographer though she usually works out at an exercise bar in the basement of her home.

Community property has its drawbacks

Q. I know that Illinois is not a "community property" state, but it seems to me that it's an ideal way for husband and wife to hold property. What do you think?

A. Nothing in life is perfect. Community property is no exception. Each system has its advantages and disadvantages. Community property is another form of joint ownership. It's been adopted and is operating in eight states: Arizona, California, Idaho, New Mexico, Nevada, Louisiana, Texas and Washington.

In some states community property was part of its legal system from the beginning. In others, it was introduced at a relatively early date.

It is interesting to note that even though other states also adopted community property, they later repealed it. One of them, Pennsylvania, had to repeal its law because the courts held that the C.P. laws of that state were unconstitutional.

• Community property is a 50-50 arrangement whereby each spouse receives half of everything. But not under all circumstances. Property that belonged to the husband or wife separately before marriage, or whatever each acquired by gift or inheritance during the marriage does not become part of the "marital community."

Generally, the husband is considered the manager of the community property and as such may sell or mortgage it. However, C.P. laws vary widely from state to state.

In most states, when either dies, the C.P. property is divided equally. In others, the proportion for each spouse depends upon what caused the divorce, so obviously, it isn't always split down the middle.

And in several states, the part of the property earned by the wife may be managed by her even though it's still a part of the marital community.

SOME WOMEN fighting for equal rights suggest lobbying for new laws that would create a modified form of a community property system for every state. But they urge "lawsuits based on the Equal Protection clause to obtain co-equal management and control rights over their community property" in those that now have it.

They say that the present C.P. laws giving the husband the right to decide to sell the house that belongs to both husband and wife, and giving him management and control of that property are equivalent to giving him ownership rights.

These women also point out that a wife should have the right, even if she's living with her husband, to sue for her ownership half; otherwise "community property" equality has no meaning.

Nader researcher raps delay in estrogen warning

The Food and Drug Administration is considering a move that could delay until the middle of next year a planned cancer warning for women using estrogen pills, Ralph Nader's health researchers said this week.

The pills are widely prescribed for the treatment of menopause symptoms, but outside advisers hired by the FDA to study their safety recommended late last year that patients and doctors alike be warned that women using the pills run an increased risk of cancer of the uterus.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Health Research Group, said he had obtained a proposed Federal Register notice in which the agency would allow another 60 days for public comment on the warning plan and then a second period of 120 days before the manufacturers of the drugs would have to provide written warning notices for doctors to give to their patients.

"IF WHAT IS discussed in these Federal Register notices goes off, it may well be the middle of 1977 before these labels reach the public," Wolfe said in an interview. He added that no new information on the subject has been developed since January when the FDA had all the information it needed to act.

"It's really just absolutely outrageous," Wolfe said, "in the face of overwhelming evidence that it causes cancer."

FDA officials said no final decision had been made on whether the agency would propose the delay.

The largest selling estrogen pill is Premarin, made by Ayerst Laboratories. Annual sales of the pills amount to about $80 million, with an estimated 5 million to 6 million women taking them regularly.

Wolfe said there is evidence that the pills are abused with some women taking them for 10 years or more even though they are supposed to be used only for a brief period during the "change of life."

"THE BULK OF women are taking them for the wrong reasons," he added.

The advisory committee told the FDA the warnings should be sufficiently strong to cause doctors to prescribe them only for conditions where their use is known to be necessary and effective.

Several centers offer after-school care

The Illinois Department of Children and Family Services reports there are several facilities in the Northwest suburbs that offer after-school care.

In last week's series on working mothers, The Herald listed only one such facility, but that was based on incorrect information given Herald reporter Laura Schmalbach by an employee in the Department of Children and Family Services.

According to supervisor Bea Fish the list of centers offering after-school care on a limited basis includes:

Poco-Loco in Wheeling and Glenview, Palatine Nursery School-Day Care Center, Community Child Care Center in Palatine, Mount Prospect Nursery School-Day Care Center, Children's Center in Mount Prospect, My Little World in Buffalo Grove, Minnee-Subee Village in Buffalo Grove, and Early Learning Centers in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Hoffman Estates and Lake Zurich.

Etiquette expert talks about changing manners

by JEANNE LESEM

A trip to Alaska changed Elizabeth Post's mind about the propriety of accepting doggy bags in restaurants when faced with a meal too large to eat.

"We were served the most enormous portions seen any place," said Mrs. Post, granddaughter-in-law of etiquette authority Emily Post. "Even the men in our party couldn't begin to finish them. The waiter asked if we wanted to take the (leftover) steak with us for a picnic tomorrow."

The answer was a unanimous "yes."

In an interview, Mrs. Post talked about changing manners and mores in the 1970s.

She deplored the service of large portions in restaurants. "It's just terrible when they bring huge portions uninvited. Men can eat them, but women can't."

WHILE SHE NOW approves of carrying away leftovers from dinner in some restaurants, especially considering the high cost of food, "You shouldn't take gooey things," she said, "but it's only sensible to take steak or a chicken leg or an untouched chop or half a loaf of bread. Not at a really fancy restaurant, of course. But a really good restaurant is not apt to serve too much."

At the same time, Mrs. Post disapproves of ordering one portion for two persons in most restaurants.

"It isn't fair to the restaurant. You are paying for one meal, but using two places."

Since 1944 Mrs. Post has carried on her grandmother-in-law's tradition of writing about etiquette. She has a syndicated column and has updated "Emily Post's Etiquette," a book first published in 1922. The latest edition was published last year (Funk and Wagnall's $11.95). It reflects the present Mrs. Post's new attitude about doggy bags and other changing social customs, including showers and birth announcements for unwed mothers. But some things never change, she said.

"TABLE MANNERS exist for a very good reason. They were devised to make eating more attractive. Chewing with your mouth open is not, for instance.

"Weddings are largely unchanged. The majority of girls still wear white, still have bridesmaids and ushers, still exchange vows and promises, still have receptions with toasts to the bride and bridegroom and still have flowers."

She said many readers ask how to handle introductions of their daughter's housemate of the opposite sex.

"I would say, 'This is my daughter's friend, John.' I don't think it is necessary to say more.

"I have had lots of interesting conversations about this. One friend in Vermont (where Mrs. Post and her husband, William, live) introduces her daughter's friend as 'my son-out-law.' I also know people who say co-habitant or co-vivant."

SHE ALSO GETS questions from people like the couple who took their infant daughter along when a neighbor asked them to drop in for cocktails and supper, but didn't say it was going to be a party. They were appalled to discover that a dozen or more guests were expected. The wife said they felt so out of place they apologized and went home.

People also ask what to do about bringing an uninvited guest.

"It is almost always possible to ask if you can bring someone," Mrs. Post said. "It is perfectly possible for a hostess to say, 'no'."

But she also should say why, Mrs. Post said, and add, "I'm terribly sorry, I'll get you another time."

Also ticklish is the question of manners when the phone rings while a visitor is present. You answer, said Mrs. Post, but let the caller know you have a visitor and will call back later if a long conversation is expected.

"It's so rude not to (postpone the call). You have a captive audience who doesn't want to listen, but who cannot help doing so."

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Mary Lou Alfini is one doctor's wife who understands the demands of the medical profession. She learned at her mother's knee.

Daughter of a physician and wife of Dr. Robert Alfini, Arlington Heights orthopedic surgeon, Mrs. Alfini appreciates and is tolerant of her husband's professional commitment, long hours and on-call duty.

"I can't always tell the children 'we'll do it when Daddy comes home.' And socially I do sometimes have to stand in for him, but I don't resent it. I love being a doctor's wife! I knew what I was getting into," she admitted, smiling.

Though primarily a physician's wife, a mother and a homemaker in her own eyes, Mary Lou definitely is not homebound.

THE SMARTLY attired, petite size, model-lovely brunette brings charm and beauty to any setting. But she becomes slightly impatient with those who dote on her good looks, for she relies on more solid values.

Mary Lou's happiest managing her home and volunteering time and expertise to the community. And that expertise includes that of dancer, teacher, choreographer, runway model and hospital volunteer. She also has public relations know-how and organizational talent she can contribute now that children Mary Jo, 19, Jim, 14, and Jeffrey, 11, are older.

"But I am not Mrs. Do-Gooder," declares Mrs. Alfini. "I do what I enjoy, It keeps me a happy person and makes others happy."

"Besides," she adds, "a successful homemaker gets out into the community. Her husband and children are outside the home in school and at work, and she should get out, too."

MARY LOU IS accustomed to a busy life with varied interests. She grew up in River Forest where she attended Rosary College, majoring in math and minoring in drama. As a teenager, she won a beauty contest and for the prize received modeling lessons. She eventually modeled at the old Fair Store, later for other stores, companies and conventions.

She retains an active interest in fashion, sometimes modeling at local charity shows sponsored by such organizations as Arlington Heights Woman's Club, Northwest Community Hospital, Republican Women's Club and Our Lady of the Wayside Church.

She also models and sells seven lines of clothing for a New York company when that firm's representatives come to Chicago. "Buyers attend conventions where I model clothes and they place their orders," she explained.

For her own wardrobe Mary Lou chooses traditional styles that span the seasons. She incorporates new ideas as they suit her mode of dressing, selecting what complements her personal style, she said. She especially loves jewelry, genuine gold being her standby.

"IF YOU BUY something that looks good, it can be updated and always will look good" is her fashion credo.

Mary Lou also enjoys dance. Her primary interest in that field is teaching and doing choreography for amateur variety shows. Every other year, for example she choreographs, teaches and performs in a show put on by Rolling Green Country Club. Her repertoire includes tap, modern dance and ballet.

"Mary Jo and I do our ballet exercises at a bar in the basement," she said.

Though she likes fashion and dance, Mary Lou's major interest is linked to her husband's profession. She spends the most time — and that can be several days a week during winter months — at Northwest Community Hospital. She has sat on the hospital auxiliary board about seven years, and she now chairs the Community Relations Hospital Foundation. Public relations is her main job.

"THE AUXILIARY is working to educate the community in what's going on at the hospital to benefit both sick and well people," she said. "We want the public to know what the hospital can do for them, so when we approach them for contributions, they will know why."

Replacing outdated equipment is one area that requires community help.

"Our primary job is to raise money for hospital equipment. No way can this come from patient fees. The only way to get it is from community donors," said Mary Lou.

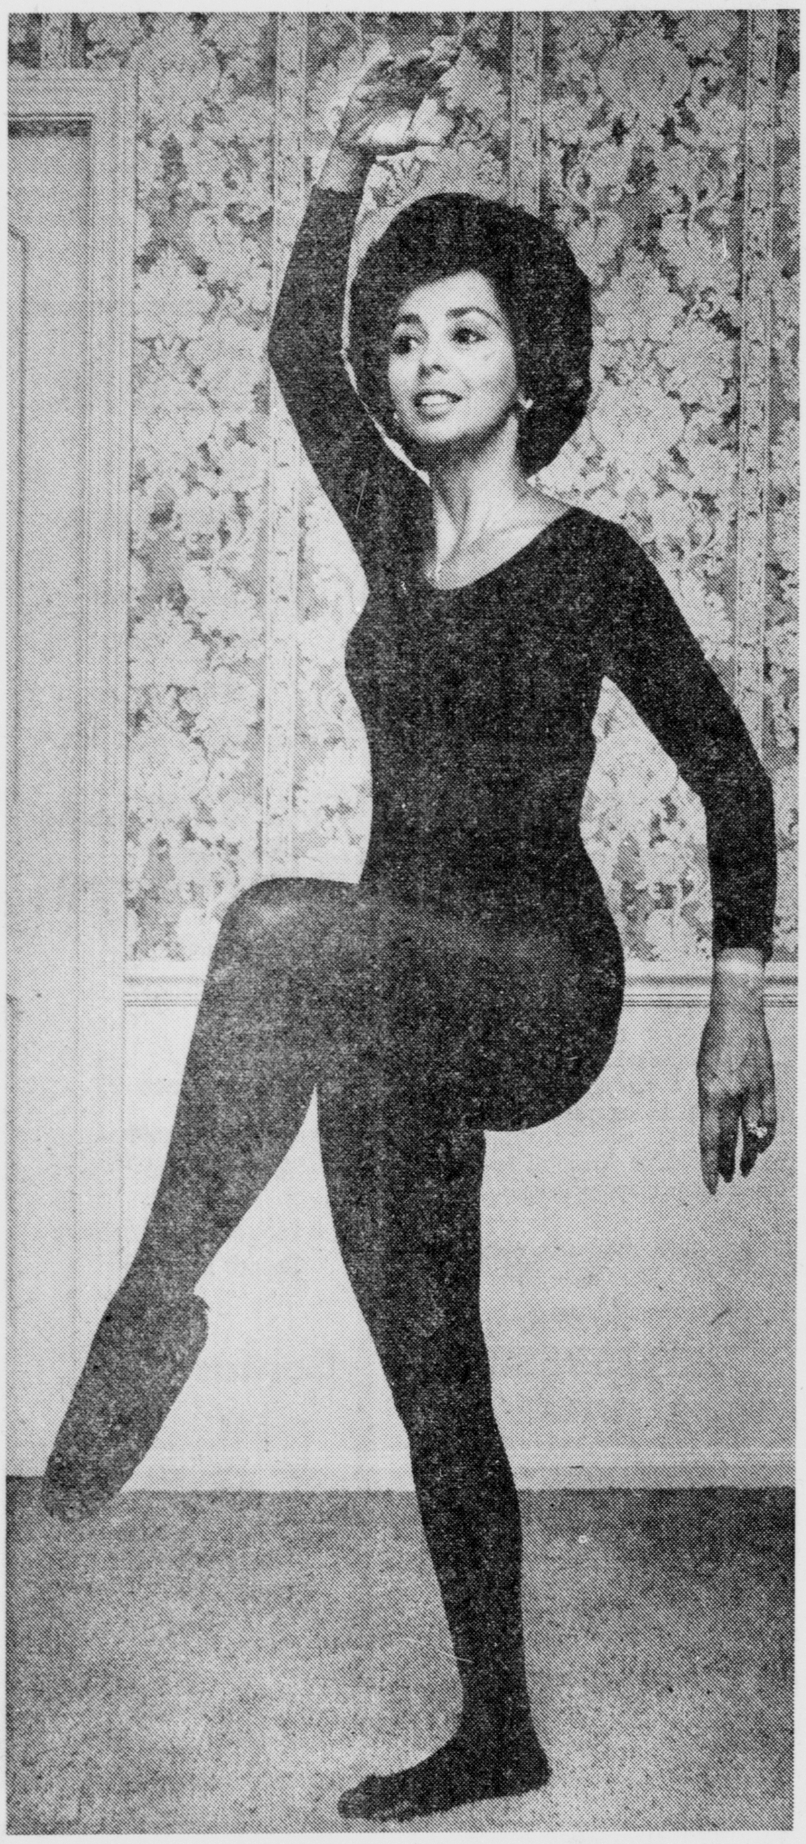
Extending services into the community, the foundation has set up such programs as Tele-Care for older citizens, a pediatric orientation program for children to be hospitalized, a baby sitting program and a speaker's bureau among others.

MARY LOU ALSO acts as go-between for hospital activities and other doctor's wives, a role she particularly enjoys.

Doing what she enjoys is Mary Lou Alfini's lifestyle and she's happy and satisfied with her choice. Sharing her time and talents gives her the variety she needs, and home and family more than fulfill the rest of her life.

Of her husband she says, "Medicine is an admirable profession, but even if I weren't married to a doctor, I'd love and respect Bob as a person. He's a real, genuine, good human being. He has no temper, no temperament."

Then as a parent, she adds: "I've chosen my lifestyle and I'm happy with it. But I want our daughter to be prepared to take advantage of opportunities that are open to her in this new society."



BALLET HELPS Mary Lou Alfini, busy doctor's wife, keep trim. Here she demonstrates a position for the photographer though she usually works out at an exercise bar in the basement of her home.

Community property has its drawbacks

Q. I know that Illinois is not a "community property" state, but it seems to me that it's an ideal way for husband and wife to hold property. What do you think?

A. Nothing in life is perfect. Community property is no exception. Each system has its advantages and disadvantages. Community property is another form of joint ownership. It's been adopted and is operating in eight states: Arizona, California, Idaho, New Mexico, Nevada, Louisiana, Texas and Washington.

In some states community property was part of its legal system from the beginning. In others, it was introduced at a relatively early date.

It is interesting to note that even though other states also adopted community property, they later repealed it. One of them, Pennsylvania, had to repeal its law because the courts held that the C.P. laws of that state were unconstitutional.

• Community property is a 50-50 arrangement whereby each spouse receives half of everything. But not under all circumstances. Property that belonged to the husband or wife separately before marriage, or whatever each acquired by gift or inheritance during the marriage does not become part of the "marital community."

Generally, the husband is considered the manager of the community property and as such may sell or mortgage it. However, C.P. laws vary widely from state to state.

In most states, when either dies, the C.P. property is divided equally. In others, the proportion for each spouse depends upon what caused the divorce, so obviously, it isn't always split down the middle.

And in several states, the part of the property earned by the wife may be managed by her even though it's still a part of the marital community.

SOME WOMEN fighting for equal rights suggest lobbying for new laws that would create a modified form of a community property system for every state. But they urge "lawsuits based on the Equal Protection clause to obtain co-equal management and control rights over their community property" in those that now have it.

They say that the present C.P. laws giving the husband the right to decide to sell the house that belongs to both husband and wife, and giving him management and control of that property are equivalent to giving him ownership rights.

These women also point out that a wife should have the right, even if she's living with her husband, to sue for her ownership half; otherwise "community property" equality has no meaning.

Nader researcher raps delay in estrogen warning

The Food and Drug Administration is considering a move that could delay until the middle of next year a planned cancer warning for women using estrogen pills, Ralph Nader's health researchers said this week.

The pills are widely prescribed for the treatment of menopause symptoms, but outside advisers hired by the FDA to study their safety recommended late last year that patients and doctors alike be warned that women using the pills run an increased risk of cancer of the uterus.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Health Research Group, said he had obtained a proposed Federal Register notice in which the agency would allow another 60 days for public comment on the warning plan and then a second period of 120 days before the manufacturers of the drugs would have to provide written warning notices for doctors to give to their patients.

"IF WHAT IS discussed in these Federal Register notices goes off, it may well be the middle of 1977 before these labels reach the public," Wolfe said in an interview. He added that no new information on the subject has been developed since January when the FDA had all the information it needed to act.

"It's really just absolutely outrageous," Wolfe said, "in the face of overwhelming evidence that it causes cancer."

FDA officials said no final decision had been made on whether the agency would propose the delay.

The largest selling estrogen pill is Premarin, made by Ayerst Laboratories. Annual sales of the pills amount to about $80 million, with an estimated 5 million to 6 million women taking them regularly.

Wolfe said there is evidence that the pills are abused with some women taking them for 10 years or more even though they are supposed to be used only for a brief period during the "change of life."

"THE BULK OF women are taking them for the wrong reasons," he added.

The advisory committee told the FDA the warnings should be sufficiently strong to cause doctors to prescribe them only for conditions where their use is known to be necessary and effective.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Reader 'hooked' on tranquilizer

I am an arrested alcoholic. I'm 66 years old. When I used to drink sometimes I would have to be hospitalized and my doctor would put me on Valium for the withdrawal symptoms. I know (thank God) that I'll never drink anymore as I've been through so many trials in the last two years. My brother died with cancer, my husband had two light strokes and already had a colostomy for cancer and my mother-in-law died. I didn't drink, but I did take Valium and now I am addicted to it.

I used to quit taking Valium anytime I wanted to, but can't seem to cope with it now. I'm working on it, taking only one a day, but my nerves and my stomach are so weak I can hardly make it. I'm planning to cut them to one-half a day soon.

I talked to my family doctor about it and he said, "Well, quit taking them." It is easier said than done, so he gave me a prescription for Librium and said, "Try these." They don't seem to have any effect on me. With the grace of God, which I pray for each day, do you think I can recover at my age?

Valium is commonly used in treating patients with alcohol problems during the withdrawal phase to control symptoms. Otherwise, it is not a useful drug in treating alcoholism.

Valium is not addictive. It can cause habituation, but the difference is that you can quit without having severe chemical reactions in the body typical of true addiction. That doesn't mean it is easy to quit and you will need all the support you can get. I am sure you can do it. Considering your low dosage, I would suggest that you just stop it.

And I am not enthusiastic about substituting another drug for your problems. You will end up again using drugs to cope with life situations. That probably had a lot to do with your original alcohol problem.

Rather I would like to see you get some good psychiatric help. You are not too old to benefit at all. If you can get your life situations under control or improve your ability to cope with them, you may not need a crutch at all.

I hope you will never again get back on alcohol. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 1-4, Alcohol, Whiskey, Gin, Vodka, Rum, Wine, Beer for more information on how damaging this can be. Since you have licked the problem, maybe you can help others to quit. Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I had chicken pox as a child and it left quite a few marks on my face. I would like to do something about it and am wondering whom I should see — a dermatologist or a plastic surgeon. Please let me know if you have heard of any treatment.

If you have marks that are sufficiently important to correct, I would suggest that you see a plastic surgeon, preferably one who does cosmetic surgery.

For superficial scars of the face from any cause, including old acne scars, a process called sanding can be done. It literally removes the superficial layer of the skin and in that way removes the marks. It is not suited to dark pigmented people because it may decrease the pigmentation of the skin. In any case, a consultation with a plastic surgeon will tell you if you are a candidate for such a procedure.

Apple pie has crumb top but also calories

Dear Dorothy: I remember a pie from my childhood which my mother called "French apple pie." It was a one-crust pie with crumbs on top. It was delicious. Ever run into anything like it?—Elizabeth Pollert

In the days when calories weren't so important I used to make a pie like this. We all loved it. Maybe it's enough like the one you're seeking to pass. Make one crust and line a nine-inch pie pan. Add the following filling. Quarter and slice about six cups of peeled apples. Mix three-fourths cup sugar with one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Toss with the apples and put into the crust. Then cream one-half cup of butter with one-half cup of light brown sugar. Add one cup of flour and mix thoroughly. Sprinkle this crumb topping over the apples and bake at 400 degrees 50 to 60 minutes, or until the apples are cooked and the top is a rich brown.

Dear Dorothy: I'm wondering if the following are good for the rose bed: Wood and paper ashes? Charcoal ashes? Also coffee grounds?—Mrs. Robert Rigsby

A little of any of these would be okay for the rose bed. Anything that makes the soil more friable is helpful. It would be better, of course, if these add-ins were broken down by composting.

In all there were 20 members of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Brockie's family staying at their home in Palatine before the wedding of their daughter, Darlene Kay, to George Dodgen. Since the older Brockie children were married before the youngest was born, it was the first time the entire family had been together.

All of the children, including the bride, live out of town, and the Palatine reunion lasted a week.

Darlene and George, son of Mr. and Mrs. Terrence Dodgen, Arlington Heights, were married Aug. 7 in St. James Church, Arlington Heights. Bridesmaids were her sisters, Connie Woodin of Lakeland, Fla., Lynn Niedermayer of Midlothian, and Kim, Palatine; the groom's sister, Patricia; and Pat Mandele, Arlington Heights.

Three-year-old Heather Brockie, a niece from Kenosha, was flower girl, and 5-year-old Nile Woodin was his cousin's escort.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dodgen

DARLENE BORROWED her sister Lynn's wedding gown and made her own veil. Her flowers were ivory roses and baby's breath. The maids were in apricot and ivory gauze gowns with apricot picture hats and bouquets of apricot and yellow carnations.

Best man was John Gardner, Arlington Heights, and ushers were the groom's brother-in-law, Tom Crocker, Wheeling; Glenn Eirich, Mount Prospect; Mark Tatge, Arlington Heights; and the groom's brothers, Bernard of Arlington Heights and James of Elgin.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Klinger Jr.

Gail Greaves—Richard Klinger Jr.

An old-fashioned country wedding Aug. 14 in St. John Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect, united Gail Deborah Greaves of Elk Grove Village and Richard William Klinger Jr. of Des Plaines.

Gail did most of the preparations herself, making her own veil and the ensembles worn by her attendants; designing and casting the rings the couple exchanged; making the wedding banner her brother, Robert, carried to the altar; and designing the wedding invitations, church bulletins and reception programs.

Gail and Rick were '72 graduates of Elk Grove High School who continued their romance through college, though apart. She graduated in art last December from Northern Illinois University and he earned a bachelor's degree in history this past June from Western Illinois University.

THEIR PARENTS are Mr. and Mrs. Harold Greaves and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Klinger, whose 25th wedding anniversaries were feted during dancing that followed the luncheon reception at Itasca Country Club.

For the candlelight ceremony at 10:30 a.m. Gail wore a white pearled, Alencon lace and silk chiffon gown and a triple-tiered veil which she appliqued with matching lace. White roses, spider mums and baby's breath were in her bouquet.

Kristine Mikkelsen, Elk Grove Village, was maid of honor in a toast brown and cream plaid chiffon gown with random rust and gold flowers imprinted. She wore a straw picture hat in toast brown and carried a straw basket filled with rust and gold mums and baby's breath.

Richard Skipton of Morton Grove was best man, with the couple's brothers, Paul Klinger and James Greaves, and Burleigh Winters III, LaGrange, as groomsmen.

The Rev. William Ahlfeldt was soloist, accompanied on the flute by Sharon Wesslund, the bride's cousin. St. John's pastor, the Rev. Theodore Staudacher, and Christus Victor Lutheran Church pastor, the Rev. Roger Schindel, officiated.

After a week's honeymoon at a ranch in Colorado the newlyweds settled on the campus of Western Illinois University where Rick is doing graduate work. Gail will be the art teacher for kindergarten through high school in Avon, Ill.

Linda Drain—Frank D. Blum

Linda Kathleen Drain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Drain of Arlington Heights, and Frank D. Blum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Blum, Mount Prospect, were married Aug. 7 in First United Methodist Church of Arlington Heights.

Both 1973 graduates of Hersey High School, the couple attend Eastern Illinois University where the bride is a senior and the groom a graduate student. They are residing in Charleston, Ill.

For the 11 a.m. double ring ceremony Linda chose an organza gown trimmed with Venise lace and flounce and ending in a chapel train. Her fingertip veil was attached to a Juliet cap, and she carried a cascade of white orchids, carnations and pink roses.

MAID OF HONOR was Linda Myers of Blue Mound, Ill. Bridesmaids were the sisters of the bride, Judie and Nancy, and Teri Holley of Arlington Heights. They wore pink floral gowns and flowers in their hair. They carried cascades of pink roses, white carnations and baby's breath.

Ken Johnson of Mount Prospect was best man, and ushers were Tom McHugh and Rob Beck of Mount Prospect and Dave Wessels of Strawn, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Blum

A luncheon reception was held at Landers Chalet in Elk Grove Village, after which the newlyweds went on a two-week honeymoon to the Smoky Mountains and Florida.

In a rainbow wedding that took place Aug. 7 Kathleen A. Quinn became the bride of Larry W. Nagel. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick J. Quinn, Rolling Meadows, Kathleen and Larry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Nagel, Marengo, were married in St. Colette Catholic Church, Rolling Meadows, in a 2:30 p.m. double ring service.

Kathy's maid of honor, Debra Smith, Rolling Meadows, was in blue, and the maids, the groom's sister, Alice, Maureen Murray, Arlington Heights, and Jeannette Piro, Rolling Meadows, wore yellow, green and peach. Their halter gowns were in dotted Swiss with matching jackets. Picture hats and baskets with an assortment of summer flowers completed their ensembles.

KATHY'S GOWN was in organza and trimmed with Belgian and Alencon lace. Her cathedral-length mantilla was also trimmed in the Belgian lace, and she carried a nosegay of white roses and daisies with miniature yellow carnations. She also wore small pearl earrings, a gift from her twin brother, Michael, who was one of the ushers.

Also ushering were Richard Norton, Palatine, and Robert Immekus, Crystal Lake. Best man was Richard Hayden, Wheeling.

HAVE A BEDWETTER?
LET HIM HAVE A DRY BED
The greatest gift you can give a bedwetter and the rest of the family, too, is an end to this serious problem, and make no mistake, bedwetting is serious. It can cause complicated psychological problems that last a lifetime. It's so needless because bedwetting, when not caused by organic defect or disease, can be ended surely and swiftly. Send for our free brochure. "Bedwetting — What It's All About and How to End It." a report by three eminent medical doctors. No obligation.

Heat, water give rise to geysers

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Katherine Cseres, 13, of Hartney, Man., Canada, for her question:

WHAT CAUSES GEYSERS LIKE OLD FAITHFUL?

There are about 200 active geysers in Yellowstone National Park, and the most famous is Old Faithful. Other geysers send water to greater heights but none with the regularity of Old Faithful. In fact, careful observation of past eruptions enables park rangers to predict the time of the next one. And they are right 75 times out of 100.

On the average of every 67 minutes, Old Faithful spouts its foamy fountain 106 to 184 feet into the air. Each eruption uses about 11,000 gallons of water at steaming temperatures, and this display has been continuing for more than 100 years.

What makes a geyser work? Basically it is a matter of three things — heat, water and an underground plumbing system that is strong enough to withstand the tremendous pressures that build up during an eruption.

The typical roots of a geyser may include a series of connected cracks and crevices reaching down deep into the ground perhaps 1,000 feet or more. A narrow, crooked vent leads to the surface. Ground water from rainfall seeps into the crevices and fills cavities where it is heated by hot rocks. Deep underground the water is under pressure, and its boiling point is much greater than it would be on the surface.

The water at the bottom of the vent becomes hotter and hotter. Gradually the hot water begins to rise. As it does, steam bubbles form. As the bubbles rise they grow larger, pushing water above them. At the surface, belches of water begin overflowing from the vent hole. This makes the column of water lighter, and more water is able to turn to steam. Finally, boiling begins at many points in the vent and steam is produced so rapidly that it forces the water up and out of the geyser vent in a stupendous cascade of steam and water.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Teresa Murphy, 12, of Tohatchi, N.M., for her question:

WHAT COLOR WERE DINOSAURS?

The last dinosaurs theoretically disappeared from the face of the earth around 60 million years ago. No one was around to tell them goodby, and they left no piecture of themselves as remembrances. The only way that scientists know what they looked like is by reconstructing their skeletons. Although an animal's skeleton can tell us much about the animal's way of life, one thing it can't tell us is the animal's color.

Thousands of different kinds of dinosaurs roamed the earth in all sizes and shapes. More than likely they came in assorted colors, too. Perhaps they were the dull, drab browns or greens of our crocodiles and alligators. On the other hand, they might have worn the more colorful reds, yellows and shiny blacks of the coral snake. They may have been striped like the zebra, or spotted like the leopard. From the information available to us today, however, no one can be sure of their color scheme.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

It isn't hard to get to a slam with today's hand. South has a sound opening bid and North is looking at 17 good high-card points.

North wanted to bid six notrump. He had a notrump-type hand and everyone wants to be declarer, but finally North settled for six hearts. six hearts.

It was a wise decision indeed. Six notrump is doomed to failure. In fact, six notrump might well go down two tricks.

South wasn't too happy with his six-heart contract. He studied the hand for some time and then played dummy's king of clubs. He wanted to retain the ace of clubs as an entry to his own hand. Then South went after diamonds. He cashed dummy's ace and his king, led a third diamond and ruffed with dummy's eight of hearts.

When both opponents followed everything was wine and roses. He cashed dummy's king of trumps, came to his hand with the ace of clubs, played his ace and queen of trumps, conceded a trump trick to West who had been unkind enough to hold four trumps and claimed the balance.

Suppose diamonds had broken badly. South would not have made his contract, but as stated earlier it was not a really good slam.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

It isn't hard to get to a slam with today's hand. South has a sound opening bid and North is looking at 17 good high-card points.

North wanted to bid six notrump. He had a notrump-type hand and everyone wants to be declarer, but finally North settled for six hearts. six hearts.

It was a wise decision indeed. Six notrump is doomed to failure. In fact, six notrump might well go down two tricks.

South wasn't too happy with his six-heart contract. He studied the hand for some time and then played dummy's king of clubs. He wanted to retain the ace of clubs as an entry to his own hand. Then South went after diamonds. He cashed dummy's ace and his king, led a third diamond and ruffed with dummy's eight of hearts.

When both opponents followed everything was wine and roses. He cashed dummy's king of trumps, came to his hand with the ace of clubs, played his ace and queen of trumps, conceded a trump trick to West who had been unkind enough to hold four trumps and claimed the balance.

Suppose diamonds had broken badly. South would not have made his contract, but as stated earlier it was not a really good slam.

Operation Nutrition's future uncertain

Family puzzled by food plan cuts

Today

Mike Klein's people

This story might cause some readers to shake their heads and wonder whether the "American Dream" still exists for hard working families who chase rainbows.

Then again, it might cause other readers to shake their heads and question whether assistance and sympathy are appropriate for people who have more children than they can afford.

There also is another question, one perhaps more important than the first two. That is the issue of why a good food assistance program such as Operation Nutrition must be kicked into limbo, with its future uncertain at best.

Dave and Kathy Fischer are the parents of seven children. Their oldest is Danny, an 11-year-old, and their youngest is Matthew, just 14 months old.

BETWEEN DANNY and Matthew are the four Fischer girls — Sandy 9, Tammy 6, Vicki 5 and Tracy 4 — plus 2-year-old Jamie.

Each afternoon seven days a week, Dave drives their well-broken-in red station wagon 30 miles from the Fischer's home in Hanover Park to his job in Aurora.

Dave, who at 40 is 10 years older than Kathy, works the 5 p.m. to midnight shift as an FM radio disc jockey at WKKD in Aurora.

For all that travel, the strange work hours and his on-the-air creative talents, Dave is paid less than $200 per week. His salary is the Fischers' only income.

"Everyone knows my husband works in radio," Kathy said one morning this week as all nine Fischers gathered in their living room.

"OF COURSE, he must make a million dollars," she said. "Johnny Carson does. Larry Lujack does. For every Larry Lujack, there must be 10,000 guys who don't make that money."

Nobody ever told the Fischers that raising seven childen would be a cakewalk. "The sad thing is that our society is no longer set up for big families, the way costs have tripled the last five or six years," Dave said.

"I used to make $100 a week, wasn't on food stamps, didn't owe anybody a dime," Dave said. "Now I make almost double that and we're in trouble. Of course, $200 a week isn't much for a family of nine."

Luckily, their three-bedroom house has no mortgage.

The Fischers also have been lucky with medical bills. Their seven children are rarely sick. And that is good, because they cannot afford medical insurance.

But three of the girls, Sandy, Tracy and Tammy, have required orthopedic treatment.

ANY WAY THEY'VE stretched it, the Fischers never have been able to make Dave's $200 per week support nine people, even when seven are small people.

The Fischers became a food stamp family almost two years ago. Dave and Kathy pay $85.50 for each $169 they receive in stamps. The Fischers purchase about $300 in food stamps each month.

That begins to make a dent in their huge food bill. But for the past year, the Fischers, like nearly 500 other low-income families throughout the Northwest suburbs, also have relied upon Operation Nutrition.

The food assistance program is federally sponsored but locally administered. Clara Rocha handles Operation Nutrition for the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Participants who have met financial requirements have received food each month. A typical food pick-up for the Fischers might include:

Three 4-pound boxes of powdered milk, 60 cans of milk, 22 cans of vegetables, eight pounds of canned meat, one dozen 46-ounce cans of fruit juice, four cans of fruit, eight boxes of farina cereal, one dozen packets of powdered eggs and powdered potatoes.

TWO CANS of peanut butter were included every other month. As Kathy said, "If it wasn't for Operation Nutrition, we wouldn't have made it. The kids would be eating peanut butter sandwiches for dinner."

But now the Fischers and other low-income families must at least temporarily feed themselves without assistance from Operation Nutrition.

It passed into limbo because the Northwest Opportunity Center, which serves seven townships, could not raise $15,000 necessary to maintain the program.

Those funds pay a local worker and help to defer costs incurred to ship the food from a St. Louis warehouse to one in Chicago, according to a spokeswoman for the Opportunity Center.

The cash flow problem was created when the U.S. Community Services Administration could not fund Operation Nutrition.

There is no immediate hope that the food assistance program can be resumed soon, a spokesman for the Northwest Opportunity Center said Tuesday morning.

DAVE AND Kathy Fischer said their most recent Operation Nutrition allotment should last another two weeks. Then they have just one alternative: back to the supermarkets.

"It's amazing," Dave said. "We (the United States) think nothing of helping (people in) other countries, but we frown on helping our own people.

"They say, 'You're in the United States and nobody goes hungry,'" Dave said. "That couldn't be further from the truth. There are thousands, and especially children, who don't eat right."

"People say we didn't have to have seven children. OK, that's been a problem," Kathy said. "But we love them and we're not asking anybody else to take care of them.

"Off the record or on the record, my children were not unwanted," Kathy said. "They're very loved."

Kathy Fischer sat in her living room surrounded by seven active children. She discussed her tricks for "sneaky nutrition" and "4,011 recipes for green beans."

NOW SHE WONDERED whether there will be any more green beans. "I still do not understand why the program has stopped," said Kathy, who watches federal money being directed into the strangest places.

"Money is involved somewhere. But they get all the food for nothing. The companies write it off for a tax thing. Maybe it's a lack of funds for Clara's salary," Kathy said.

"It just doesn't make a whole lot of sense. Then again, it's an election year and a lot of things don't make sense."

Water hearings end Nov. 5, state says

Illinois Dept. of Transportation hearings on Lake Michigan water allocations will conclude Nov. 5, the department has announced.

The state is expected to make lake water allocations sometime before the end of the year.

Illinois is prevented by a 1967 U. S. Supreme Court order from taking more than 3,200 cubic feet per second of water out of Lake Michigan. Requests for water total more than 4,000 cubic feet per second.

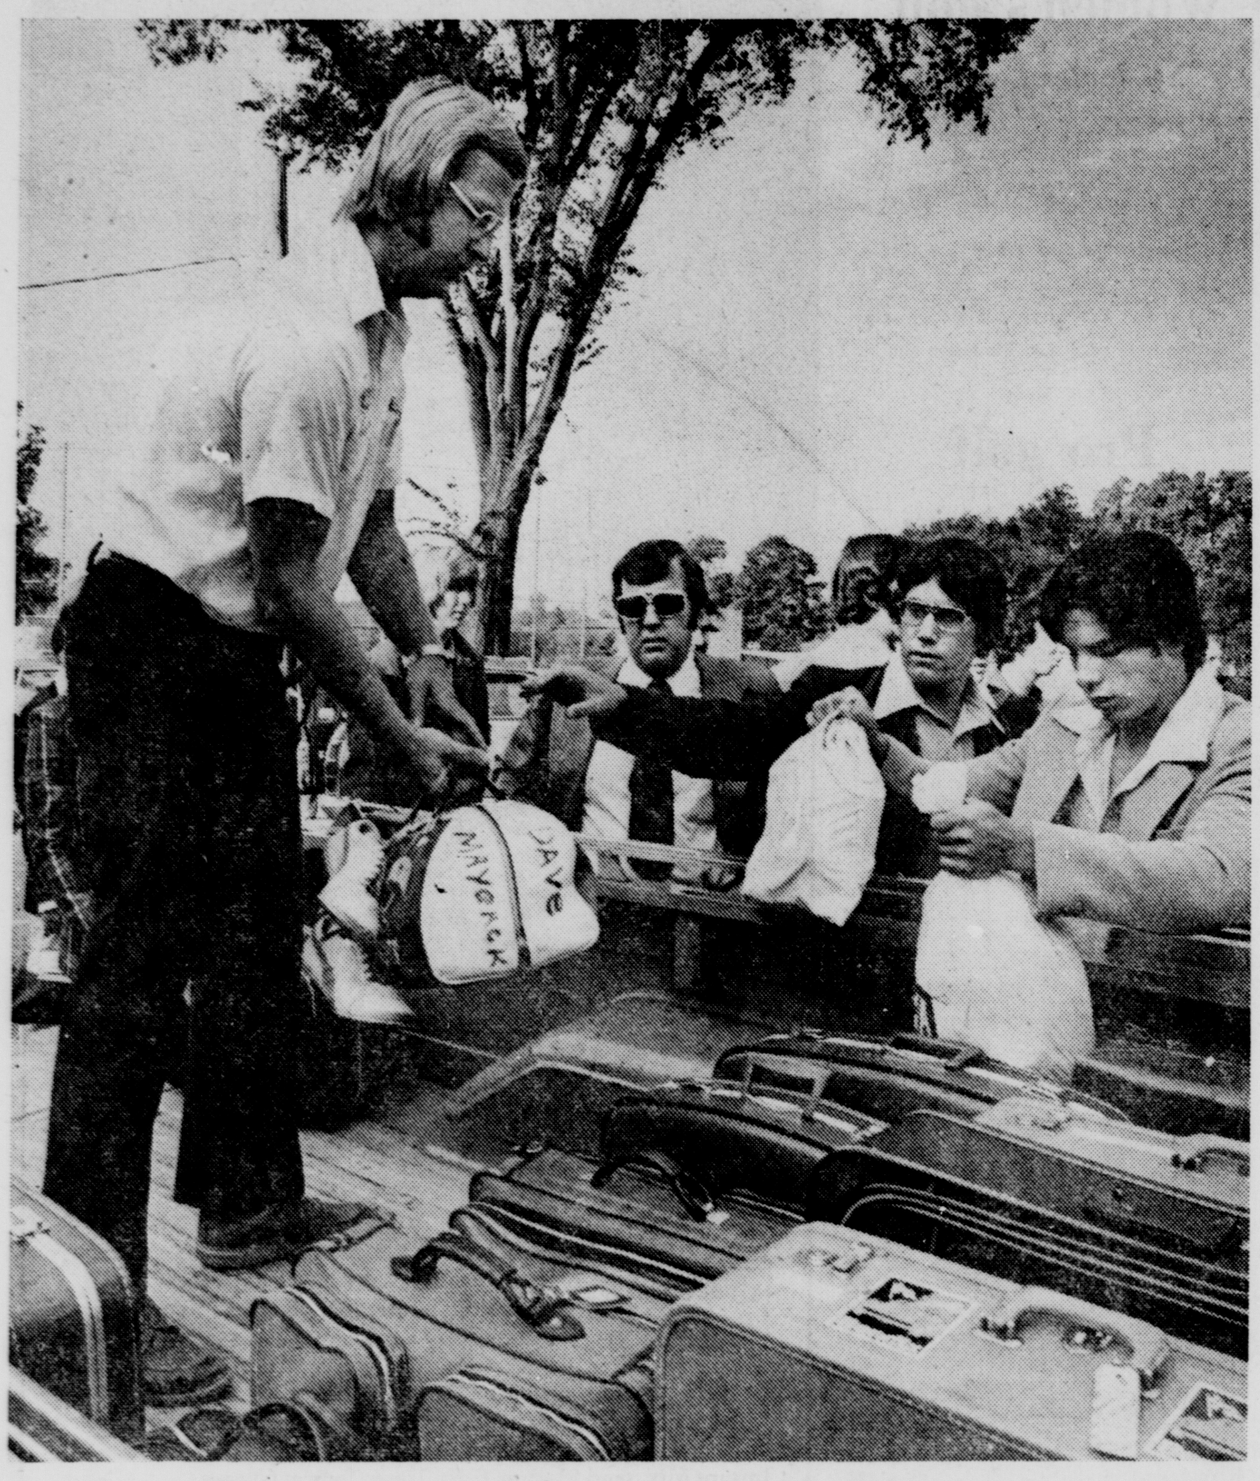
Decisions made, Legion entry departs



OFF WE GO. The Arlington Heights American Legion team, sponsored by Bill Cook Buick, assembles early Tuesday morning in preparation for the trip to the airport and flight to Manchester, N.H. for the national finals. The squad opens play Thursday against Warwick, R.I.

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

It was a simple decision that faced several members of the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team.

Either go to school or to the national tournament in Manchester, N. H. Either play in the tournament or play in the first game of the high school football season.

The choices were clearly defined and, predictably, most of the players opted for the trip with the team.

"I'm sure they'll all go," said Arlington Heights coach Lloyd Meyer Monday. "It is really an experience. I've been to the national tournament once before and it's amazing how well they run it."

Two of the Arlington players, Gary Kempton of Arlington High School and Dennis Drolet of Rolling Meadows, face the possibility of missing their schools' opening football game.

"Denny is our captain and starting quarterback," said Meadows coach Art Klein. "If he gets his practices he may play but we're not counting on him.

"He's been to most of our practices and he's probably the tiredest kid on the team, driving to make the games."

Arlington coach Chuck Haines said, "This is a time in life when Gary is going to have to make a tough decision. It won't be the last time and it's probably not the first.

"Gary was battling for the starting job at quarterback and he led our team in interceptions last year with seven.

"I don't care if he's Jesse James or the President of the United States, if he doesn't get in 14 practice days he can't play."

Jerry DeSimone and John Vukovich will miss valuable class time at Southern Illinois University.

"We started Aug. 23," said Vukovich, "and I went to the first two days.

"I might have to drop a class but I never really considered not going on the trip."

Nor did DeSimone.

"I've got to call school and get everything straightened out," he said. "I've got a couple lecture courses I'm not worried about but you only go through life once so I'm going to make the trip."

Guy Tenuta, the second baseman from Rolling Meadows High School, will miss part of his freshman year at Illinois State. Kevin McBride and Paul Marsillo will be missing their classwork at the University of Illinois.

Tom Barnard and Bob Huber are planning to start at Carthage College when they return from New Hampshire while Don Stebbins will begin his freshman year at Miami of Ohio.

Meyer thought Brett Frase might decide to postpone his start at Harper College until next semester but his mother, Gean, disagreed.

"I think he's going to try and stick it out," she said. "The nationals are really a thrill and there was never any doubt he'd go along.

"He'll just have to come back and work twice as hard."

You can help

There obviously is a large expense involved in sending a baseball team to a national tournament.

The Arlington Heights (Des Plaines Post 36) American Legion team opens play Thursday in the national finals in Manchester, N. H., and donations are being accepted to help cover the overall cost.

Send any donations to Arlington Baseball Boosters, Inc., 1650 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004.

Indians clip White Sox with three runs in 10th

Dave Hamilton, who has been effective so many times in a relief role this season, was ineffective Tuesday night for the White Sox.

Hamilton, who came on for starter Bart Johnson after Johnson had pitched nine strong innings, yielded three runs in the top of the 10th and the Cleveland Indians pulled out a 4-2 victory over the Sox in Comiskey Park before a crowd of 15,672.

Johnson left after yielding seven hits over nine frames, striking out four and walking three, but Hamilton ran into trouble with one out in the 10th when he yielded Duane Kuiper's fourth straight hit.

Larvell Blanks singled and Ron Pruitt drew a walk from Hamilton to load the bases. Rico Carty didn't have to swing the bat as he coaxed a walk from a 3-2 count, and then Boog Powell, on a checked swing, slapped an infield hit that scored what proved to be the decisive run.

Pete Vukovich came in for Hamilton to finish up.

The Sox threatened in the home half of the 10th when the first two batters reached base, but Ralph Garr struck out on a pitch over his head and Jim Spencer took a called third strike.

Brian Downing blooped a hit for the second Sox run of the evening, but Bill Stein popped to end the game.

The Indians held a 1-0 advantage until Jim Spencer tied it in the eighth with a single, and the Sox put a base runner on in the ninth but couldn't score against relief ace Jim Kern, who owns four straight decisions over Chicago.

The two clubs play again tonight at 8:00.

Rugby football delights this 'hooker' in Texas

by BRUCE NICHOLS

HOUSTON (UPI) — Terri Walger is not merely a woman who plays football. She is a woman who plays rugby football, the English game resembling a gang fight that is played without pads.

"I love it, except for being sore," says the 5-2, 120-pound captain of her as yet unnamed team. "People might think I'm a little bit off my rocker, but it's something I want to do. It's fun. It gives me exercise."

Miss Walger, 22, plays hooker, or forward, for the team and for that she taks a lot of razzing.

"It's kind of rough. How many people do you know when asked what position they play say 'hooker?' "

But she says she doesn't mind the kidding and hopes it shows the kidders are taking an interest in the female version of the traditionally all-male forebearer of American football.

The idea took shape with the help of Larry St. Amand of the Houston Boars men's rugger team.

"Some of the women who traveled with us to games were complaining the guys were having all the fun and asked why girls couldn't play, too," said St. Amand, 34, a bachelor who coaches the women twice a week.

Several months ago, he and his fellow rugby enthusiasts began recruiting teammates for their wives and girlfriends. "Everytime you meet a girl, you must ask her if she wants to play rugby," he said.

Twenty-two who did not consider the question an insult signed up, paid their $10 dues to the Texas Rugby Union, bought some shoes and came to practice.

Week bfre last, they played their first regulation game against an Austin-Dallas team, also unnamed. They lost 4-0.

"It was really just a practice game," hedged Miss Walger. "There's only one girl on our team who's ever played before."

St. Amand said the Austin-Dallas team included four Houston women who switched sides so they could have a regulation contest with 15 players on each side.

Actually, it was just a semi-regulation game. No one has decided what rules will apply, St. Amand said, because American women have been playing rugby for only about two years.

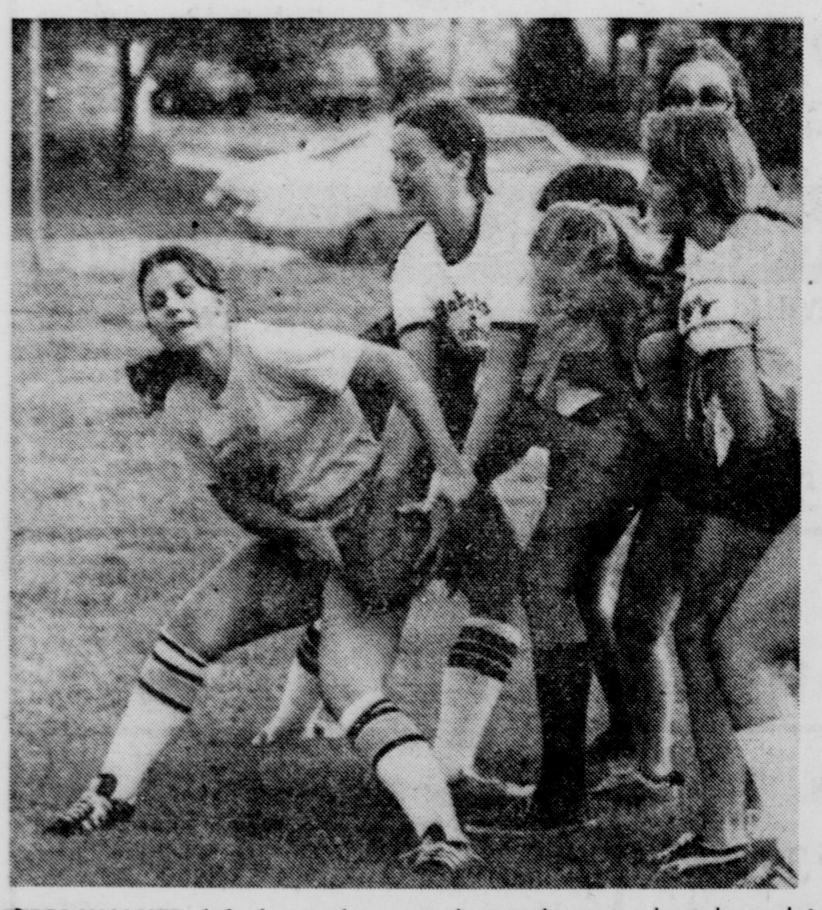
He said one adjustment in last weekend's game was that the women played 30 minutes instead of the 80 minutes allotted men's competition.

Otherwise, it was regular men's rules in which almost anything goes, perhaps even a jersey or a pair of shorts.

"I haven't seen that happen yet, but anything's possible," Miss Walger said. "I got a couple of bruises and got stepped on. One girl got a bloody nose."

Rugby may be roughhouse, but Miss Walger said the women who play can be active and remain feminine.

"It has nothing to do with women's liberation. It's all feminine. It's all women."



TERRI WALNER, left, has to be a good sport because she takes a lot of razzing in Houston, Tex., not only for playing the roughhouse contact sport of rugby but for playing the rugby position of "hooker."

Atlanta tips Cubs, 5-3; Monday hits 25th homer

From Herald Wire Services

ATLANTA — Ken Henderson, who used to play with the White Sox, knocked in two runs with a ground rule double during a three-run Atlanta outburst in the sixth inning Tuesday night to lead the Braves to a 5-3 victory over the Cubs.

Atlanta loaded the bases in the sixth on Rod Gilbreath's walk, Rowland Office's single and an error by first baseman Rick Monday on Willie Montanez' grounder. Henderson hit Rick Reuschel's next pitch on a bounce over the left field fence to drive home two runs and Jim Wynn followed with a sacrifice fly.

Office drove home a run for Atlanta in the first with a sacrifice fly and Jerry Royster singled in the Braves' fifth run in the seventh inning, after Vic Correll singled and took third when relief pitcher Steve Stone's pickoff throw went wild.

Monday's two-run homer powered Chicago's attack. It was his 25th of the season.

The two clubs return to action tonight at 6:30 .

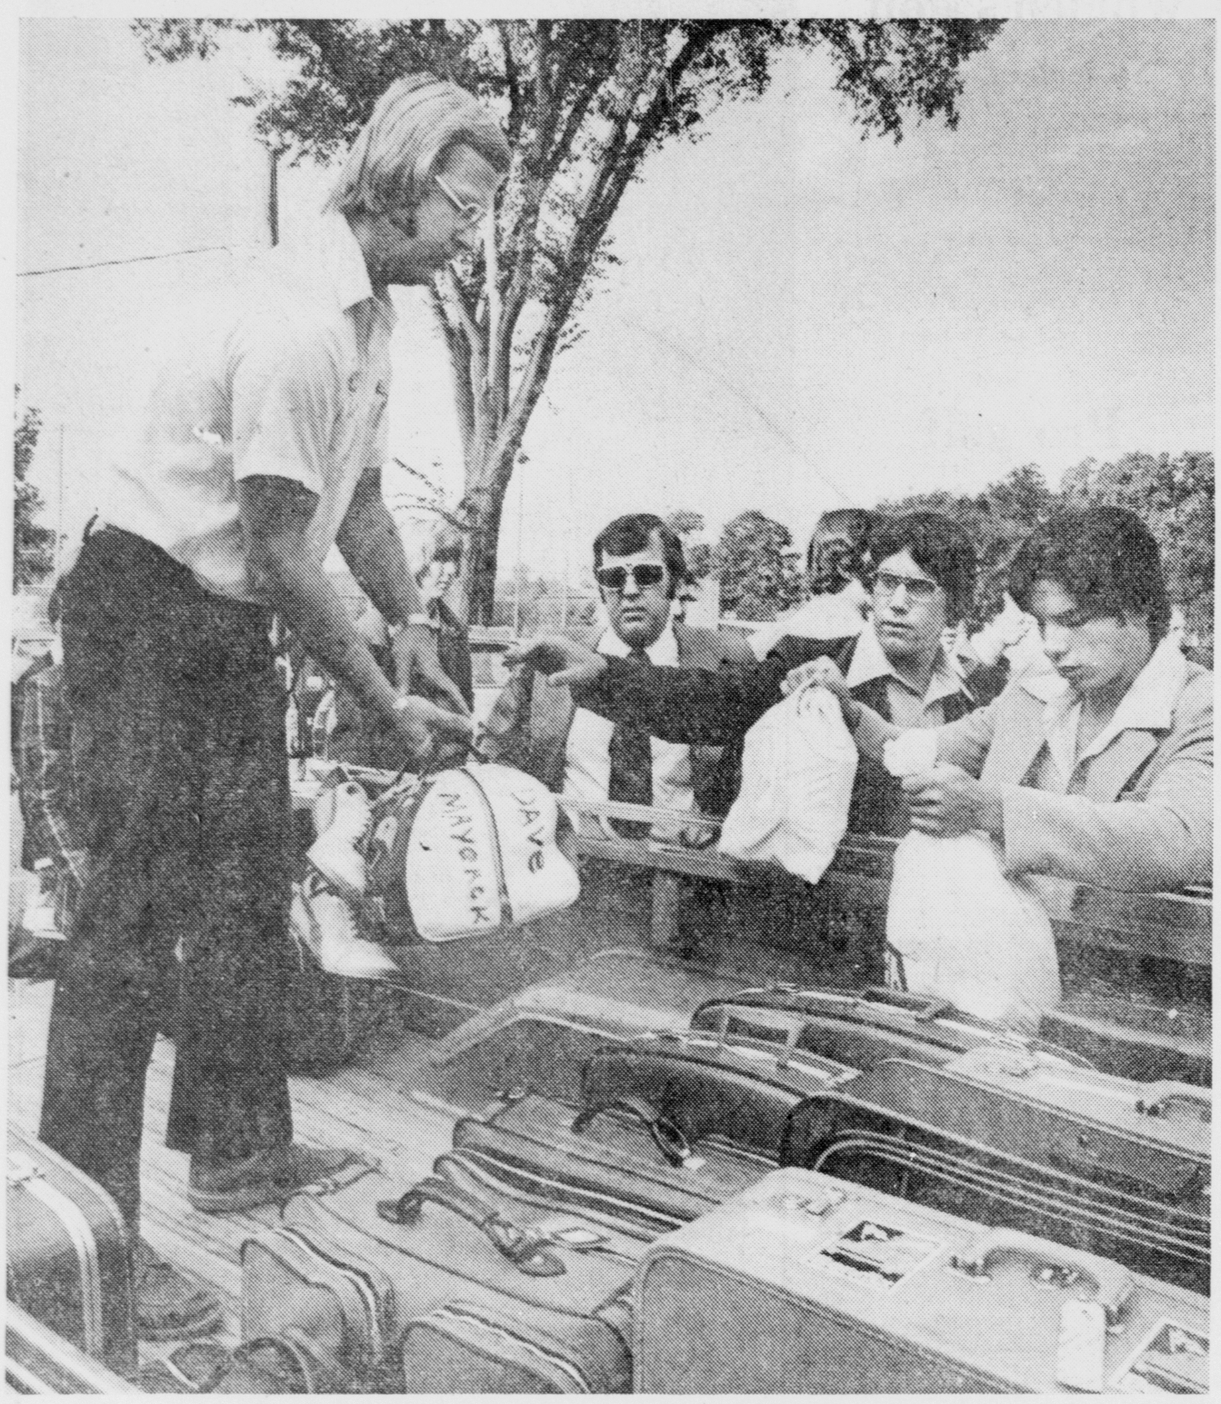
Decisions made, Legion entry departs



OFF WE GO. The Arlington Heights American Legion team, sponsored by Bill Cook Buick, assembles early Tuesday morning in preparation for the trip to the airport and flight to Manchester, N.H. for the national finals. The squad opens play Thursday against Warwick, R.I.

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

It was a simple decision that faced several members of the Arlington Heights American Legion baseball team.

Either go to school or to the national tournament in Manchester, N. H. Either play in the tournament or play in the first game of the high school football season.

The choices were clearly defined and, predictably, most of the players opted for the trip with the team.

"I'm sure they'll all go," said Arlington Heights coach Lloyd Meyer Monday. "It is really an experience. I've been to the national tournament once before and it's amazing how well they run it."

Two of the Arlington players, Gary Kempton of Arlington High School and Dennis Drolet of Rolling Meadows, face the possibility of missing their schools' opening football game.

"Denny is our captain and starting quarterback," said Meadows coach Art Klein. "If he gets his practices he may play but we're not counting on him.

"He's been to most of our practices and he's probably the tiredest kid on the team, driving to make the games."

Arlington coach Chuck Haines said, "This is a time in life when Gary is going to have to make a tough decision. It won't be the last time and it's probably not the first.

"Gary was battling for the starting job at quarterback and he led our team in interceptions last year with seven.

"I don't care if he's Jesse James or the President of the United States, if he doesn't get in 14 practice days he can't play."

Jerry DeSimone and John Vukovich will miss valuable class time at Southern Illinois University.

"We started Aug. 23," said Vukovich, "and I went to the first two days.

"I might have to drop a class but I never really considered not going on the trip."

Nor did DeSimone.

"I've got to call school and get everything straightened out," he said. "I've got a couple lecture courses I'm not worried about but you only go through life once so I'm going to make the trip."

Guy Tenuta, the second baseman from Rolling Meadows High School, will miss part of his freshman year at Illinois State. Kevin McBride and Paul Marsillo will be missing their classwork at the University of Illinois.

Tom Barnard and Bob Huber are planning to start at Carthage College when they return from New Hampshire while Don Stebbins will begin his freshman year at Miami of Ohio.

Meyer thought Brett Frase might decide to postpone his start at Harper College until next semester but his mother, Gean, disagreed.

"I think he's going to try and stick it out," she said. "The nationals are really a thrill and there was never any doubt he'd go along.

"He'll just have to come back and work twice as hard."

You can help

There obviously is a large expense involved in sending a baseball team to a national tournament.

The Arlington Heights (Des Plaines Post 36) American Legion team opens play Thursday in the national finals in Manchester, N. H., and donations are being accepted to help cover the overall cost.

Send any donations to Arlington Baseball Boosters, Inc., 1650 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004.

Indians clip White Sox with three runs in 10th

Dave Hamilton, who has been effective so many times in a relief role this season, was ineffective Tuesday night for the White Sox.

Hamilton, who came on for starter Bart Johnson after Johnson had pitched nine strong innings, yielded three runs in the top of the 10th and the Cleveland Indians pulled out a 4-2 victory over the Sox in Comiskey Park before a crowd of 15,672.

Johnson left after yielding seven hits over nine frames, striking out four and walking three, but Hamilton ran into trouble with one out in the 10th when he yielded Duane Kuiper's fourth straight hit.

Larvell Blanks singled and Ron Pruitt drew a walk from Hamilton to load the bases. Rico Carty didn't have to swing the bat as he coaxed a walk from a 3-2 count, and then Boog Powell, on a checked swing, slapped an infield hit that scored what proved to be the decisive run.

Pete Vukovich came in for Hamilton to finish up.

The Sox threatened in the home half of the 10th when the first two batters reached base, but Ralph Garr struck out on a pitch over his head and Jim Spencer took a called third strike.

Brian Downing blooped a hit for the second Sox run of the evening, but Bill Stein popped to end the game.

The Indians held a 1-0 advantage until Jim Spencer tied it in the eighth with a single, and the Sox put a base runner on in the ninth but couldn't score against relief ace Jim Kern, who owns four straight decisions over Chicago.

The two clubs play again tonight at 8:00.

Rugby football delights this 'hooker' in Texas

by BRUCE NICHOLS

HOUSTON (UPI) — Terri Walger is not merely a woman who plays football. She is a woman who plays rugby football, the English game resembling a gang fight that is played without pads.

"I love it, except for being sore," says the 5-2, 120-pound captain of her as yet unnamed team. "People might think I'm a little bit off my rocker, but it's something I want to do. It's fun. It gives me exercise."

Miss Walger, 22, plays hooker, or forward, for the team and for that she taks a lot of razzing.

"It's kind of rough. How many people do you know when asked what position they play say 'hooker?' "

But she says she doesn't mind the kidding and hopes it shows the kidders are taking an interest in the female version of the traditionally all-male forebearer of American football.

The idea took shape with the help of Larry St. Amand of the Houston Boars men's rugger team.

"Some of the women who traveled with us to games were complaining the guys were having all the fun and asked why girls couldn't play, too," said St. Amand, 34, a bachelor who coaches the women twice a week.

Several months ago, he and his fellow rugby enthusiasts began recruiting teammates for their wives and girlfriends. "Everytime you meet a girl, you must ask her if she wants to play rugby," he said.

Twenty-two who did not consider the question an insult signed up, paid their $10 dues to the Texas Rugby Union, bought some shoes and came to practice.

Week bfre last, they played their first regulation game against an Austin-Dallas team, also unnamed. They lost 4-0.

"It was really just a practice game," hedged Miss Walger. "There's only one girl on our team who's ever played before."

St. Amand said the Austin-Dallas team included four Houston women who switched sides so they could have a regulation contest with 15 players on each side.

Actually, it was just a semi-regulation game. No one has decided what rules will apply, St. Amand said, because American women have been playing rugby for only about two years.

He said one adjustment in last weekend's game was that the women played 30 minutes instead of the 80 minutes allotted men's competition.

Otherwise, it was regular men's rules in which almost anything goes, perhaps even a jersey or a pair of shorts.

"I haven't seen that happen yet, but anything's possible," Miss Walger said. "I got a couple of bruises and got stepped on. One girl got a bloody nose."

Rugby may be roughhouse, but Miss Walger said the women who play can be active and remain feminine.

"It has nothing to do with women's liberation. It's all feminine. It's all women."

TERRI WALNER, left, has to be a good sport because she takes a lot of razzing in Houston, Tex., not only for playing the roughhouse contact sport of rugby but for playing the rugby position of "hooker."

CUBS' JOSE Cardenal and the ball reach home plate at the same time Tuesday night. Braves' catcher Vic Correll put the tag on and umpire Dutch Rennert called Cardenal out, but Jose vigorously disputed the decision. Atlanta won, 5-3.

Bulls' personnel director resigns

Jerry Krause Tuesday announced he has resigned effective immediately his position as director of player personnel for the Chicago Bulls.

Krause said his decision stemmed from personal reasons. He also said he is negotiating for a position in the National Basketball Assn.

Krause has been involved in numerous front-office controversies in his short stay with the club. He reportedly was not given official backing in his evaluation of player talent at the college draft, and he also has been a central figure in the dealings with coach Ray Meyer of DePaul University, dealings that admittedly took on a bizarre aspect at times.

Meyer, an Arington Heights resident, became involved in discussions with the Bulls in their search for a head coach with Krause reportedly initiating the talks. There was much confusion over the discussions with denials leading to newspaper speculation on Krause's actual role with the Bulls.

A spokesman for the Bulls Tuesday said the club had no comment on the resignation.

Injury may sideline Evert for U.S. Open tennis meet

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Injury may sideline Chris Evert and Billie Jean King will be missing from the singles, but the 12-day U. S. Open tennis championships which begin at the West Side Tennis Club today are still expected to play to record crowds.

Evert, the defending champion and top seed, still is nursing the injured right hand which forced her to miss last week's Federation Cup in Philadelphia, while King, who was unbeatable last week in Philadelphia and in World Team Tennis competition in New York, did not enter the singles competition she won for the fourth time in 1974.

Evert has a tendon injury which makes it difficult for her to make a fist but has until Saturday to decide whether she can play. Evert drew a bye in Thursday's first round.

While the women's competition comes down to a virtual fight between Evert, Evonne Cawley and third-seeded Martina Navratilova, the same cannot be said about the men.

Nothing is certain in tennis, but it will take a brave man to bet Manuel Orantes would retain the championship he won so easily against Jimmy Connors last year.

The toothy Spaniard, who played poorly before Wimbledon, has posted only one victory since on the Grand Prix circuit.

Jimmy Connors is the top seed and is the man in form, but he apparently has forgotten how to win the big titles. His last major championship was here in 1974.

Bobby Orr confident he will play

MONTREAL (UPI) — Chicago Black Hawks superstar defenseman Bobby Orr was confident Tuesday he will play in the Canada Cup of Hockey series despite the fact his left knee, which has been operated on six times, was sore earlier this week.

"My knee just felt a little irritated and sore," said Orr, who previously played 10 seasons with the Boston Bruins and won more honors than any other player in the National Hockey League.

"Last week when I was practicing, and when I played in those two exhibition games, nobody actually knocked into my knee so I suppose that the word 'injury' should not be used. You could call it a slight injury, but I needed two days rest."

Orr did not practice with Team Canada Sunday and did not play in the 7-4 victory over Czechoslovakia Monday night.

"I'm confident that I will be fully prepared for the first game on Thursday night," Orr said after skating on the Montreal Forum ice Tuesday.

NFL negotiations go on...and on

Player representatives of National Football League teams voted Tuesday night in Chicago to table a proposal from management for a new contract.

The vote, which neither Players Association President Dick Anderson of the Miami Dolphins or Executive Director Ed Garvey would announce, came at the conclusion of a 10-hour meeting in which the representatives discussed and voted individually on more than 30 articles in the proposed agreement.

Garvey said the vote to table the proposal called for clarification of various points in the agreement.

"What we do will have to be discussed with players around the league," Garvey said. "The representatives felt we needed to continue bargaining."

Anderson, who negotiated the proposal with Dan Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers, with the participation of NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, said he "favored the proposal. I thought it was something the players could live with and deal with.

"I'm disappointed," Anderson said. "I feel it was the best offer we're going to get. Now we'll have to go further and continue to negotiate."

Evert, the defending champion and top seed, still is nursing the injured right hand which forced her to miss last week's Federation Cup in Philadelphia, while King, who was unbeatable last week in Philadelphia and in World Team Tennis competition in New York, did not enter the singles competition she won for the fourth time in 1974.

Evert has a tendon injury which makes it difficult for her to make a fist but has until Saturday to decide whether she can play. Evert drew a bye in Thursday's first round.

While the women's competition comes down to a virtual fight between Evert, Evonne Cawley and third-seeded Martina Navratilova, the same cannot be said about the men.

Nothing is certain in tennis, but it will take a brave man to bet Manuel Orantes would retain the championship he won so easily against Jimmy Connors last year.

The toothy Spaniard, who played poorly before Wimbledon, has posted only one victory since on the Grand Prix circuit.

Jimmy Connors is the top seed and is the man in form, but he apparently has forgotten how to win the big titles. His last major championship was here in 1974.

Bobby Orr confident he will play

MONTREAL (UPI) — Chicago Black Hawks superstar defenseman Bobby Orr was confident Tuesday he will play in the Canada Cup of Hockey series despite the fact his left knee, which has been operated on six times, was sore earlier this week.

"My knee just felt a little irritated and sore," said Orr, who previously played 10 seasons with the Boston Bruins and won more honors than any other player in the National Hockey League.

"Last week when I was practicing, and when I played in those two exhibition games, nobody actually knocked into my knee so I suppose that the word 'injury' should not be used. You could call it a slight injury, but I needed two days rest."

Orr did not practice with Team Canada Sunday and did not play in the 7-4 victory over Czechoslovakia Monday night.

"I'm confident that I will be fully prepared for the first game on Thursday night," Orr said after skating on the Montreal Forum ice Tuesday.

NFL negotiations go on...and on

Player representatives of National Football League teams voted Tuesday night in Chicago to table a proposal from management for a new contract.

The vote, which neither Players Association President Dick Anderson of the Miami Dolphins or Executive Director Ed Garvey would announce, came at the conclusion of a 10-hour meeting in which the representatives discussed and voted individually on more than 30 articles in the proposed agreement.

Garvey said the vote to table the proposal called for clarification of various points in the agreement.

"What we do will have to be discussed with players around the league," Garvey said. "The representatives felt we needed to continue bargaining."

Anderson, who negotiated the proposal with Dan Rooney of the Pittsburgh Steelers, with the participation of NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, said he "favored the proposal. I thought it was something the players could live with and deal with.

"I'm disappointed," Anderson said. "I feel it was the best offer we're going to get. Now we'll have to go further and continue to negotiate."

Alston outburst certain to keep press attacking

Jim Murray

Managing a big league baseball team is no big deal. With a man on first and nobody out, you bunt. Bottom of the ninth, winning run on third, you send up Manny Mota. You keep your star pitcher sober, try to keep your cleanup hitter square with his parole board, bat right-handers against left-handers and vice versa, try to stay awake in the dugout and make sure the showers are turned off.

And try not to call sportswriters "overstuffed pigs."

Most of his career, manager Walt Alston has lived by the rules. That's why he has set a modern record of 23 years on the same job.

There's nothing complicated about running the Dodgers. Management gets rid of guys who bust up barroom mirrors for you, write bad checks or eat with their fingers or with their hat on. The farm system sends up pretty good players and you have, by and large, a "sweetheart" press to deal with. The club hires the broadcasters, the owner runs the league, the crowds are good but not critical and they go home early. They come to the game to eat, not to carp.

Marie Antionette should have had it so good. It's like getting $80,000 a year to watch a park cannon.

Some thought Walt Alston just perfect for this job. The team that didn't need a manager didn't have one. Walt Alston was not a hunch player. He never bet longshots. He never consulted astrology. He played by "the book," baseball's version of old wives' tales, a primer based on generations of observations of the best thing to do. Not the most daring, the best.

There was dissension on the Dodgers but, unless the dissenter was batting .350, and sometimes even then, the Dodgers trade his dissension elsewhere. Alston, for all his glacial dignity on the outside, was a man who liked a little temper in the clubhouse. He took it to mean the player cared. And Alston could look the other way with the best of them.

It was no secret owner Walter O'Malley was sometimes disappointed with Alston. A shrewd showman, O'Malley would have preferred a guy who climbed the railings, kicked dirt on the umpires, threw tantrums on the basepaths, ahd kept getting fined by the league. O'Malley kept hiring clubhouse revolutionaries like Leo Durocher, Bobby Bragan and Charlie Dressen as "coaches."

O'Malley liked to keep the hired hands in ferment but Alston always outwaited — and outwitted — him. Alston never did believe you had to behave like a guy running away from a hatchet murdered to succeed in the big leagues.

The likelihood is that, if the Dodgers had stayed in Brooklyn, Alston would never have lasted this long. Baseball is not complicated, but the people in it are. And, any sports journalist worth his expense account can always find a nonplaying utility infielder or, sometimes, a Hall of Fame pitcher — to heap anonymous abuse on the manager.

Sportswriters, too, like owners, like "color" in their managers as well as their players. "Color" is sometimes another name for schizophrenia and Walt Alston is one of the most sane men you will ever know. New York sportswriters particularly, with an off day on their hands, get more guys fired than a good Depression. For some reason, fans always love to read about a guy in danger of losing an $80,000-a-year job. It's a sure-fire circulation builder.

But, in his 18 years in Los Angeles, Walt Alston has not once heard the cry of the loon. Just when the troops would appear to be getting mutinous, Walt would win another pennant. He won seven of them in the 23 years, and four World Series. Managers the sportswriters adore and imbue with all the wisdom and sagacity of the ages, like Billy Martin, Gene Mauch, and Bill Rigney, haven't won any.

Which is why Walt Alston reacted as if writer Allan Malamud were caught stoning the Vatican the other day when he read the writer's opinion that Alston was suffering from a "failure to communicate" with his players and should be retired forth with.

It is unlikely Alston would have gone 18 years without a thundering demand for his dismissal from a New York reporter. It's unlikely he would have gone one. But he was very rusty on pitches calling for his dismissal. So he lunged for this one.

Calling a writer "an overstuffed pig" is not calculated to endear Alston to the fraternity. Journalists tend to close ranks when fangs are bared at any one of their number, and it has been a bad year for the flower of American sports journalism, some of whom had been cuffed around clubhouses by irate managers for writing critical pieces.

Alston's outburst is not apt to have the desired effect of fewer pieces calling for his retirement, but, rather, more. To a sportswriter incontrovertible proof of incompetency is calling a sportswriter names, or threatening to punch him out.

Even Alston realized this, as he called up Malamud to apologize. But the problem probably really arose because both sides were getting a little flaccid. Alston had not been able to build up that little thin coating that closes over most veteran mangers' ears when they hear the call for their discharge. Alston's ears have grown bush from disuse.

But sportswriters get rusty, too. Malamud should never have been caught that near the manager's clubhouse door so soon after his fire-the-manager story. It's like getting picked off third. Sportswriters have to get periodically threatened, too, so they can switch on that little avoidance mechanism that never lets you get caught in the runway with a player you just gave an error to, a manager you just suggested firing, or a guy you suggeted could play Hamlet better than he could play left field.

We've all gotten a little flabby. After all, baseball is founded on the tradition of "throw the bum out" — whether the bum is a skipper or a sportswriter. We all owe Alston and Malamud a debt. They remind us once again that it is after all, Indian territory, and you might make the wrong move if you don't keep scanning the horizon for smoke signals — particularly when they're coming out of the manager's ears.

What's average tennis player today? Survey draws complete profile

The average non-professional tennis player in the United States is between 21 and 30 years old, is married, lives in a city of roughly 100,000 people in the western third of the country, makes between $10,000 and $15,000 a year and plays tennis slightly more than once a month.

Those are some of the leading findings of a recent survey of tennis in the U.S., conducted for the National Indoor Tennis Association (NITA) by Drs. W. Clay Hamner of Northwestern University and Hal W. Hepler of Michigan State University. Results of the survey were announced by Jack Aldworth, NITA executive director.

Of the national tennis player sampling, 40.3 per cent are between 21 and 30 years of age, while 24.1 per cent are between 31 and 40, 20.2 per cent are under 20, and 10.1 per cent are between 41 and 50. Slightly fewer than six of every 10 are married, and men outnumber women by only 6.8 per cent, the NITA survey showed.

The greatest proportion of tennis players surveyed — 39.2 per cent — live in cities roughly the size of Lexington, Ky., or Las Vegas, Nev., with between 50,000 and 150,000 people. Only 5 per cent live in towns of less than 15,000 people; a little over one in five (20.5 per cent) live in cities the size of Cheyenne, Wyo., with between 15,000 and 50,000 people. One in nine live in cities of from 150,000 to 500,000 people — such as Omaha, Neb., — and 23.7 per cent live in larger cities.

Areas of the country in which tennis players are most likely to live were the Mountain-Pacific region, with 34.2 per cent; the South Central states, with 26.6 per cent, and the Midwest, with 22.3 per cent.

When queried as to their annual incomes, 22.8 per cent say they receive between $10,000 and $15,000; 19.1 per cent say they get between $15,000 and $20,000 a year, and 13.6 per cent say they receive less than $6,500 a year. Most of the latter group, Aldworth said, probably are students. Just over 11 per cent of the resondents say their incomes are between $6,500 and $10,000 annually, while 9.4 per cent report annual salaries between $20,000 and $25,000 and 6.2 per cent report greater annual incomes.

Other significant highlights of the NITA survey:

• Better than three-quarters (75.8 per cent) of the tennis players surveyed say they would like to be able to play year-round. But only 37.3 per cent have ever heard of indoor tennis, and only 34.6 per cent say there is an indoor facility in their area. And, whether an indoor facility is nearby or not, more than two-thirds (67.5 per cent) say they have never played on an indoor court. In fact, only 29.4 per cent of the players queried in the annual NITA survey said that they had been inside an indoor tennis club at some time in their lives.

• More than half (51.4 per cent) of the players sampled either have no idea of the costs of indoor tennis or greatly overestimate the actual average dues of $62.94 yearly. Almost 41 per cent think that an initiation fee is required (it rarely is).

• Nearly two-thirds (65.9 per cent) of the respondents say they are interested in improving their playing skills, and just over half (51.2 per cent) have taken lessons. Private lessons are preferred by 47.6 per cent of the players, as againt 32.7 per cent who prefer group lessons and 16.4 per cent who don't care one way or the other.

• Asked what services are provided by indoor tennis clubs, 63.3 per cent mentioned showers, 61.6 per cent said lockers, 41.4 per cent mentioned lessons — and a surprising 47 per cent said they thought food was available (it seldom is). Also, the least frequently mentioned service was babysitting — and babysitting services are actually quite common.

• Seventy-eight per cent of those players surveyed say they play tennis for the exercise and for the competiton, with more women players indicating that exercise is the chief attraction in the game and more men citing competition as their chief interes.

• Singles tennis is preferred by a wide margin over doubles, even though an increased level of doubles playing would relieve the pressure for more courts.

• Demonstrating their concern for physical fitness, the tennis players survyed by NITA indicated that they also most frequently engage in swimming, walking or hiking, running or jogging and bowling.

The National Indoor Tennis Association, sponsor of the annual survey, is composed of owners of some 400 indoor tennis clubs throughout the U.S. and Canada. It is headquartered in Chicago.

Alston outburst certain to keep press attacking

Jim Murray

Managing a big league baseball team is no big deal. With a man on first and nobody out, you bunt. Bottom of the ninth, winning run on third, you send up Manny Mota. You keep your star pitcher sober, try to keep your cleanup hitter square with his parole board, bat right-handers against left-handers and vice versa, try to stay awake in the dugout and make sure the showers are turned off.

And try not to call sportswriters "overstuffed pigs."

Most of his career, manager Walt Alston has lived by the rules. That's why he has set a modern record of 23 years on the same job.

There's nothing complicated about running the Dodgers. Management gets rid of guys who bust up barroom mirrors for you, write bad checks or eat with their fingers or with their hat on. The farm system sends up pretty good players and you have, by and large, a "sweetheart" press to deal with. The club hires the broadcasters, the owner runs the league, the crowds are good but not critical and they go home early. They come to the game to eat, not to carp.

Marie Antionette should have had it so good. It's like getting $80,000 a year to watch a park cannon.

Some thought Walt Alston just perfect for this job. The team that didn't need a manager didn't have one. Walt Alston was not a hunch player. He never bet longshots. He never consulted astrology. He played by "the book," baseball's version of old wives' tales, a primer based on generations of observations of the best thing to do. Not the most daring, the best.

There was dissension on the Dodgers but, unless the dissenter was batting .350, and sometimes even then, the Dodgers trade his dissension elsewhere. Alston, for all his glacial dignity on the outside, was a man who liked a little temper in the clubhouse. He took it to mean the player cared. And Alston could look the other way with the best of them.

It was no secret owner Walter O'Malley was sometimes disappointed with Alston. A shrewd showman, O'Malley would have preferred a guy who climbed the railings, kicked dirt on the umpires, threw tantrums on the basepaths, ahd kept getting fined by the league. O'Malley kept hiring clubhouse revolutionaries like Leo Durocher, Bobby Bragan and Charlie Dressen as "coaches."

O'Malley liked to keep the hired hands in ferment but Alston always outwaited — and outwitted — him. Alston never did believe you had to behave like a guy running away from a hatchet murdered to succeed in the big leagues.

The likelihood is that, if the Dodgers had stayed in Brooklyn, Alston would never have lasted this long. Baseball is not complicated, but the people in it are. And, any sports journalist worth his expense account can always find a nonplaying utility infielder or, sometimes, a Hall of Fame pitcher — to heap anonymous abuse on the manager.

Sportswriters, too, like owners, like "color" in their managers as well as their players. "Color" is sometimes another name for schizophrenia and Walt Alston is one of the most sane men you will ever know. New York sportswriters particularly, with an off day on their hands, get more guys fired than a good Depression. For some reason, fans always love to read about a guy in danger of losing an $80,000-a-year job. It's a sure-fire circulation builder.

But, in his 18 years in Los Angeles, Walt Alston has not once heard the cry of the loon. Just when the troops would appear to be getting mutinous, Walt would win another pennant. He won seven of them in the 23 years, and four World Series. Managers the sportswriters adore and imbue with all the wisdom and sagacity of the ages, like Billy Martin, Gene Mauch, and Bill Rigney, haven't won any.

Which is why Walt Alston reacted as if writer Allan Malamud were caught stoning the Vatican the other day when he read the writer's opinion that Alston was suffering from a "failure to communicate" with his players and should be retired forth with.

It is unlikely Alston would have gone 18 years without a thundering demand for his dismissal from a New York reporter. It's unlikely he would have gone one. But he was very rusty on pitches calling for his dismissal. So he lunged for this one.

Calling a writer "an overstuffed pig" is not calculated to endear Alston to the fraternity. Journalists tend to close ranks when fangs are bared at any one of their number, and it has been a bad year for the flower of American sports journalism, some of whom had been cuffed around clubhouses by irate managers for writing critical pieces.

Alston's outburst is not apt to have the desired effect of fewer pieces calling for his retirement, but, rather, more. To a sportswriter incontrovertible proof of incompetency is calling a sportswriter names, or threatening to punch him out.

Even Alston realized this, as he called up Malamud to apologize. But the problem probably really arose because both sides were getting a little flaccid. Alston had not been able to build up that little thin coating that closes over most veteran mangers' ears when they hear the call for their discharge. Alston's ears have grown bush from disuse.

But sportswriters get rusty, too. Malamud should never have been caught that near the manager's clubhouse door so soon after his fire-the-manager story. It's like getting picked off third. Sportswriters have to get periodically threatened, too, so they can switch on that little avoidance mechanism that never lets you get caught in the runway with a player you just gave an error to, a manager you just suggested firing, or a guy you suggeted could play Hamlet better than he could play left field.

We've all gotten a little flabby. After all, baseball is founded on the tradition of "throw the bum out" — whether the bum is a skipper or a sportswriter. We all owe Alston and Malamud a debt. They remind us once again that it is after all, Indian territory, and you might make the wrong move if you don't keep scanning the horizon for smoke signals — particularly when they're coming out of the manager's ears.

What's average tennis player today? Survey draws complete profile

The average non-professional tennis player in the United States is between 21 and 30 years old, is married, lives in a city of roughly 100,000 people in the western third of the country, makes between $10,000 and $15,000 a year and plays tennis slightly more than once a month.

Those are some of the leading findings of a recent survey of tennis in the U.S., conducted for the National Indoor Tennis Association (NITA) by Drs. W. Clay Hamner of Northwestern University and Hal W. Hepler of Michigan State University. Results of the survey were announced by Jack Aldworth, NITA executive director.

Of the national tennis player sampling, 40.3 per cent are between 21 and 30 years of age, while 24.1 per cent are between 31 and 40, 20.2 per cent are under 20, and 10.1 per cent are between 41 and 50. Slightly fewer than six of every 10 are married, and men outnumber women by only 6.8 per cent, the NITA survey showed.

The greatest proportion of tennis players surveyed — 39.2 per cent — live in cities roughly the size of Lexington, Ky., or Las Vegas, Nev., with between 50,000 and 150,000 people. Only 5 per cent live in towns of less than 15,000 people; a little over one in five (20.5 per cent) live in cities the size of Cheyenne, Wyo., with between 15,000 and 50,000 people. One in nine live in cities of from 150,000 to 500,000 people — such as Omaha, Neb., — and 23.7 per cent live in larger cities.

Areas of the country in which tennis players are most likely to live were the Mountain-Pacific region, with 34.2 per cent; the South Central states, with 26.6 per cent, and the Midwest, with 22.3 per cent.

When queried as to their annual incomes, 22.8 per cent say they receive between $10,000 and $15,000; 19.1 per cent say they get between $15,000 and $20,000 a year, and 13.6 per cent say they receive less than $6,500 a year. Most of the latter group, Aldworth said, probably are students. Just over 11 per cent of the resondents say their incomes are between $6,500 and $10,000 annually, while 9.4 per cent report annual salaries between $20,000 and $25,000 and 6.2 per cent report greater annual incomes.

Other significant highlights of the NITA survey:

• Better than three-quarters (75.8 per cent) of the tennis players surveyed say they would like to be able to play year-round. But only 37.3 per cent have ever heard of indoor tennis, and only 34.6 per cent say there is an indoor facility in their area. And, whether an indoor facility is nearby or not, more than two-thirds (67.5 per cent) say they have never played on an indoor court. In fact, only 29.4 per cent of the players queried in the annual NITA survey said that they had been inside an indoor tennis club at some time in their lives.

• More than half (51.4 per cent) of the players sampled either have no idea of the costs of indoor tennis or greatly overestimate the actual average dues of $62.94 yearly. Almost 41 per cent think that an initiation fee is required (it rarely is).

• Nearly two-thirds (65.9 per cent) of the respondents say they are interested in improving their playing skills, and just over half (51.2 per cent) have taken lessons. Private lessons are preferred by 47.6 per cent of the players, as againt 32.7 per cent who prefer group lessons and 16.4 per cent who don't care one way or the other.

• Asked what services are provided by indoor tennis clubs, 63.3 per cent mentioned showers, 61.6 per cent said lockers, 41.4 per cent mentioned lessons — and a surprising 47 per cent said they thought food was available (it seldom is). Also, the least frequently mentioned service was babysitting — and babysitting services are actually quite common.

• Seventy-eight per cent of those players surveyed say they play tennis for the exercise and for the competiton, with more women players indicating that exercise is the chief attraction in the game and more men citing competition as their chief interes.

• Singles tennis is preferred by a wide margin over doubles, even though an increased level of doubles playing would relieve the pressure for more courts.

• Demonstrating their concern for physical fitness, the tennis players survyed by NITA indicated that they also most frequently engage in swimming, walking or hiking, running or jogging and bowling.

The National Indoor Tennis Association, sponsor of the annual survey, is composed of owners of some 400 indoor tennis clubs throughout the U.S. and Canada. It is headquartered in Chicago.

Bears offer familiar look to Washington

The Chicago Bear defenses should have a familiar look to the Washington Redskins in the final pre-season tune-up for the two teams Friday night.

They're the devising of Chicago Head Coach Jack Pardee, who called defensive signals when he played for Washington Coach George Allen.

The friday contest in Washington will be the first battle of wits between Allen and Pardee, one of his favorite players at Los Angeles and Washington, since the former linebacker took over the reins of the Bears last season. Pardee was an assistant under Allen for one season after his retirement in 1972 and took a head coaching job in the World Football League before landing with Chicago.

Pardee and the Bears bring a 4-1 pre-season record to the nation's capital against a Redskin team which is 2-3. But Washington, behind the quarterbacking of Bill Kilmer and Joe Theismann, rolled to a 38-7 victory over the New York Jets last weekend and Allen has never lost a final exhibition test in his 10 years of coaching.

It will be a homecoming for Chicago quarterback Bob Avellini, who played college ball at the nearby University of Maryland before being drafted in the sixth round by the Bears.

The Chicago attack also features the running of Walter Payton, the receiving of Roland Harper and the kickoff returns of rookie Brian Baschnagel, averaging 30.5 yards an attempt.

Kilmer will open for the Redskins despite a possible cracked rib sustained against the jets. Running back Calvin Hill, recovering from a pulled hamstring, will be used sparingly but John Riggins, Mike Thomas and Larry Brown should more than carry the load.

Two recent Allen acquisitions, safety Jake Scott from the Miami Dolphins and defensive tackle John Matuszak from Kansas City, are expected to see much action, the latter as a fill-in for Diron Talbert who is nursing a bruised shoulder.

Leach must stay healthy for powerful Wolverines

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Open heart surgery didn't make a new man of Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler. It just revitalized the old hard-driving one.

"Many of you have rated us high in preseason polls," Schembechler said as he discussed this fall's prospects for his Wolverine football team. "We accept that.

"We usually finish in the top 10," he said. "We expect to do it again. We've usually been pretty good.

"I'm going to push this team as hard as any I've ever coached," Schembechler said as briskly as he walks his daily training miles. "They know it — because I told them.

Probably the biggest key to any success Michigan has this year will be in keeping sophomore quarterback Ricky Leach healthy. If he gets hurt, the Wolverines will be hurt even more because Schembechler's senior backup quarterback, Mark Elzinga, piqued at playing behind Leach, dropped out of school.

"Leach is going to be good," Schembechler said. "He had an excellent freshman year and I told him so. I also told him that performance is not good enough this year."

The coach, pronounced fit from a coronary bypass operation at the time of spring practice, said his chief jobs this fall will be finding "depth at offensive tackle, making sure our backup quarterbacks are ready and finding another wide receiver to go deep.

"Our biggest concern is defense," Schembechler said. "It doesn't matter how good your offense is if you can't stop the other team from scoring."

Michigan should score and score often this year. Leach will be behind virtually the same line that protected him so well last season — plus senior guard Kirk Lewis, missed last year with a broken arm.

The return of the 245-pound Lewis has enabled his replacement, 245-pound junior Walt Downing, to move to center. Junior Bill Dufek is back at strong tackle while Schembechler has 6-foot-6, 245-pound Mike Kenn returning at quick tackle.

Michigan's two talented tight ends who played as freshmen last season, Mark Schmerge and Gene Johnson (who is from Leach's high school), are being backed with a converted quarterback, fellow sophomore Chip Pederson.

The split end, although ex-basketballer Junior Rick White may take the job, could be junior Curt Stephenson from La Jolla, Calif., of whom Schembechler says, "Can you imagine a split end coming from sunny California to chilly Michigan to go to a school where they don't pass the ball?"

Schembechler calls his wingback, senior Jim Smith, "All-America caliber.

"We'll use him as much as we can. He may be the greatest athlete on our team."

Leach will have plenty of backs to choose from. Tailbacks Rob Lytle, a senior and Harlan Huckleby, a sophomore, could gain 1,000 yards apiece (Lytle did last year) while sophomore Russell Davis, one of the most talked-about backs in the country during his high school days, will start at fullback.

Brother Michael Davis, an incoming freshman, will back Russell up while another frosh runner, Roosevelt Smith, will be among the sub tailbacks.

Dog owners at fault —

An experiment that could help solve city sidewalk sanitation problems created by dogs is meeting with little success in one New York town, reports the Gaines Dog Research Center.

It seems the dogs are willing to cooperate, but the dog owners aren't.

The experiment centers around a canine toilet installed a few months ago in an attractive, well-populated area of the Town of Greenburgh in the County of Westchester. The toilet consists of a scented mock fire hydrant placed over a manhole surrounded by a shallow cement pool deep enough to hold flushing water. The device is activated by a foot pedal.

Despite the toilet, "unsightly," "unsanitary" problems still exist in the area, states Greenburgh Deputy Public Works Commissioner Louis Giampiccolo. "We installed the unit in hopes that dog owners would guide their pets to it," he declares. "But some people won't use it at all."

This may all sound amusing but dog owners are reminded that with the canine sanitation problems that exist, they must face the possibility of some day finding dog ownership forbidden in many areas.

Grooming class —

The Chicago Miniature Schnauzer Club will hold clipping and grooming classes for the breed on Sept. 7, 14 and 21.

The location will be the Lombard Park District Community Center, Grace Street and St. Charles Road, Lombard. Hours will be from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. The cost will be $25 for the three-week course.

If you are interested, call 424-6158 or 359-7039. Don't wait too long as the classes are limited.

Palatine hockey forms plans

The Palatine Amateur Hockey Association Board of Directors are formulating plans for the 1976-77 season.

Fees for the year, while not finalized, will be comparable to last year. Fund raising activities will include a Skate-A-Thon and a one-day decal sale. Boys will have the option of paying a slightly higher fee if they choose not to participate in the fund-raising program.

Plans are under way to form a Palatine Hockey Booster Club, consisting of interested parents of boys in the program to replace the Mothers Club giving more parents an opportunity to participate. Any parents interested in joining should call Jay Campise (358-7106) or Bill McElman (359-5828).

Coaches interested in working for the House League should call Al Krueger (359-2036) or Ken McBride (359-0013). Those interested in working with the Traveling Teams should call Chuck Brewer (358-6864).

A complete brochure will be mailed by the Palatine Park District later this summer providing complete information for the 1976-77 season. If there are any questions in the meantime, call the Park District (359-0333).

Striking takes early Classic lead

Striking Lanes, paced by Alice Schroder's 154-190-178-522, took the early lead in the Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League with a 2436 total at Elk Grove Bowl.

Judy Brumond also topped the 500 mark, throwing a 139-178-193-510.

L-Tran Engineering, with a 2376 total, took the second spot as Lorrie Nichols threw the league's high series of the night with a 173-201-173-547.

Marlis Pleickhardt also edged over the 500 mark with a 188-162-154-504.

A scant 20 pins behind L-Tran, Ten Pin Bowl rode Joan Plywack's 202-148-169-519 to a 2356 total.

League president Peggy Harris tossed a 161-215-145-521 to lead Zielyart Rustproofing of Des Plaines to fourth place, aided by Carol Anderson's 136-206-176-518.

Winnie Lohse led Patterson Safety Service to a 2315 series with a 188-171-159-518 effort.

Mason Shoes got a 203-506 from Sandi Cirullo for a 2201, good for seventh place.

Betty Parkhurst's 163-168-140-471 was high series for eighth place Tower Cleaners.

Trotters

Wide-open race expected in Hambletonian

by SAMUEL O. HANCOCK

DU QUOIN, Ill., (UPI) — Dutch and Swedish entries may supply foreign intrigue this year as 3-year-old trotters go for broke in the richest-ever Hambletonian harness race next Saturday, Sept. 4, at the DuQuoin State Fair.

From 15 to 20 entries are expected by William R. Hayes II, president of the Du Quoin State Fair which has been host to the stake since 1957.

"It's the most wide-open affair in my recollection," Hayes said. "There are a lot of good ones this year but no one has really taken charge."

He said the purse "can't miss" being higher than the record $232,192 established last year.

Owners have until 10 a.m. today to pay their final $3,000 entry fees before the draw for post positions for the 51st edition of the race. The fee is $1,000 higher than last year and it will go to $4,000 in 1977, Hayes said.

"I think you would have to consider Quick Pay, Tropical Storm, Soothsayer, Steve Lobell, Nevele Thunder, Zoot Suit and Lola's Express as top contenders," he said. "I just can't wait for this one."

A field of 10 trotters would produce a purse of $239,000, with $3,000 added or subtracted for each horse above or below that figure.

Thirteen trotters were entered in 1975, as Stanley Dancer drove Bonefish to victory in a race that required four heats. Dancer also claimed a Hambo victory in 1972 with Super Bowl, whose 1:56.2 time mark still stands.

Dancer has two probable entries this year in Zoot Suit and Nevele Thunder, the winter book favorite and 2-year-old trotter of the year who won 18 of 21 outings last year with earnings of $150,487.

Lola's Express, owned by Meyn Stable of Oostzaan, Holland, and driven by Bruce Nickells, captured athe $20,136 Arden Downs Stake at the Meadows and saw his Hambletonian stock soar higher by winning the Review Futurity at the Illinois State Fair in Springfield with impressive 1:59 and 1:58.4 heats.

Vintage Year, owned by book publisher Kurt Bertmark of Holviksnas, Sweden, won a $3,500 trot earlier this month at Vernon Downs in 1:59.4, the fastest clocking of the season at that time for a 3-year-old trotter. Chompers, another Swedish colt, could join Vintage Year in the Hambletonian.

Quick Pay, trained by Billy Haughton, didn't hurt his Hambletonian credentials with his biggest win ever in the Founders Gold Cut at Vernon, N.Y., early this month after finishing second to Steve Lobell in the Yonkers Trot. Haughton won in 1974 with Christopher T.

Other trotters regarded as probables or possibles in the Hambletonian lineup include Aladdin Hill, Closed Circuit, Daring Pride, Pershing, Sure Star Hanover, Way to Fame, Der Went, Jolly Holiday and Our Cinch, all colts and fillies Ima Lulu, Armbro Regina and Fapa.

The Hambletonian first heat is scheduled for 12:20 p.m. Two heat victories are required for victory in the stake. A fourth heat raceoff will be in order if there is no winner after three heats. The horses will have a rest of a little more than an hour between heats.

Pari-mutual betting came to the Du Quoin track for the first time during last year's Hambletonian and wagering on the race exceeded $240,000. Hayes said facilities have been more than doubled since last year.

DU QUOIN, Ill., (UPI) — Dutch and Swedish entries may supply foreign intrigue this year as 3-year-old trotters go for broke in the richest-ever Hambletonian harness race next Saturday, Sept. 4, at the DuQuoin State Fair.

From 15 to 20 entries are expected by William R. Hayes II, president of the Du Quoin State Fair which has been host to the stake since 1957.

"It's the most wide-open affair in my recollection," Hayes said. "There are a lot of good ones this year but no one has really taken charge."

He said the purse "can't miss" being higher than the record $232,192 established last year.

Owners have until 10 a.m. today to pay their final $3,000 entry fees before the draw for post positions for the 51st edition of the race. The fee is $1,000 higher than last year and it will go to $4,000 in 1977, Hayes said.

"I think you would have to consider Quick Pay, Tropical Storm, Soothsayer, Steve Lobell, Nevele Thunder, Zoot Suit and Lola's Express as top contenders," he said. "I just can't wait for this one."

A field of 10 trotters would produce a purse of $239,000, with $3,000 added or subtracted for each horse above or below that figure.

Thirteen trotters were entered in 1975, as Stanley Dancer drove Bonefish to victory in a race that required four heats. Dancer also claimed a Hambo victory in 1972 with Super Bowl, whose 1:56.2 time mark still stands.

Dancer has two probable entries this year in Zoot Suit and Nevele Thunder, the winter book favorite and 2-year-old trotter of the year who won 18 of 21 outings last year with earnings of $150,487.

Lola's Express, owned by Meyn Stable of Oostzaan, Holland, and driven by Bruce Nickells, captured athe $20,136 Arden Downs Stake at the Meadows and saw his Hambletonian stock soar higher by winning the Review Futurity at the Illinois State Fair in Springfield with impressive 1:59 and 1:58.4 heats.

Vintage Year, owned by book publisher Kurt Bertmark of Holviksnas, Sweden, won a $3,500 trot earlier this month at Vernon Downs in 1:59.4, the fastest clocking of the season at that time for a 3-year-old trotter. Chompers, another Swedish colt, could join Vintage Year in the Hambletonian.

A Florlis colt, Tropical Storm is trained and driven by Ralph Baldwin, who won the Hambletonian in 1973 in straight heats with Flirth, who joined Greyhound as the only gelding winners of the stake.

Quick Pay, trained by Billy Haughton, didn't hurt his Hambletonian credentials with his biggest win ever in the Founders Gold Cut at Vernon, N.Y., early this month after finishing second to Steve Lobell in the Yonkers Trot. Haughton won in 1974 with Christopher T.

Other trotters regarded as probables or possibles in the Hambletonian lineup include Aladdin Hill, Closed Circuit, Daring Pride, Pershing, Sure Star Hanover, Way to Fame, Der Went, Jolly Holiday and Our Cinch, all colts and fillies Ima Lulu, Armbro Regina and Fapa.

The Hambletonian first heat is scheduled for 12:20 p.m. Two heat victories are required for victory in the stake. A fourth heat raceoff will be in order if there is no winner after three heats. The horses will have a rest of a little more than an hour between heats.

Pari-mutual betting came to the Du Quoin track for the first time during last year's Hambletonian and wagering on the race exceeded $240,000. Hayes said facilities have been more than doubled since last year.
